Big Three Reject Reuther Proposal

Asked Car Makers Cut Prices In Move To Combat Inflation

DETROIT (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. made unanimous Saturday the big three car makers' rejection of Walter Reuther's proposal that they cut prices on 1958 models in a union-management move to combat inflation.

Replying to the United Auto Workers' chief, Henry Ford II said the company's pricing policies were not a subject for collective bargaining.

The Ford Motor Co. president agreed with Reuther that inflation is a serious problem but Ford said, "We will not solve the problem with propaganda broadsides."

Ford's refusal to go along with Reuther's plan was based on similar reasons previously offered by General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. Neither Ford nor Chrysler, however, suggested, as GM did, that the present three-year contracts be extended two years as a "contribution to economic stability."

Promised Concessions

Reuther had promised to make unspecified concessions in the union's contract demands next year if the companies cut prices on 1958 models this fall by an average of at least $100.

Ford told Reuther the "rapid increase in wages of automobile workers over the past 10 years—which were negotiated under the duress of your demands—have unquestionably contributed to inflation. Thus, having poured gasoline on the fires of inflation, you now stand by and tell us how to fight the blaze. In return, you say you will consider using less gasoline next time—or maybe only kerosene."

Ford's Answer

The union's proposal, Ford said amounts, in effect, to this:

"If Ford Motor Co., this fall, will absorb the cost increases during 1957 and then also reduce the average price of its 1958 model cars $100 below the average 1957 model price, we at UAW in our contract negotiations with Ford next summer—nine months later—will take this into consideration in our demands and we may not ask as much in the way of increased wages and increased fringe benefits as otherwise will be the case."

Ford told Reuther if the proposal were turned around "perhaps your reaction to it will be the same as mine to yours."

Rebuttal

Ford went on, "Suppose I were to say to you: 'If you will accept an immediate reduction in wages to the levels prevailing at the introduction of our 1957 models, we will take this into consideration in determining how much we will increase prices of our 1958 models."

Reuther said earlier this week the UAW would not agree to any wage reduction to match his suggested cut in auto prices.

Ford said gross average hourly wage rates at his company, including fringe benefits, have risen from $1.83 in 1948 to $3.11 at present, with a 3 cents per hour cost of living increase coming in September.

"Thus," Ford said, "hourly wages at the Ford Motor Co. increased 70 per cent while the price of a typical Ford car was rising 30 per cent. And the 1957 car—bigger and heavier, with better styl-

Search Ends - Tragically

Recover Bodies Of Three Sisters From Fill At Abandoned Quarry

DIXON, Ill. (AP) — A state's attorney said three little sisters found dead in an abandoned quarry Saturday apparently were buried by a landslide started by a bulldozer crew. The crew's foreman was the victims' father.

An inquest jury returned a finding of "accidental" in the death of the Gurnsey sisters — Nancy, 10, Ruthie, 9, and Theresa, 8. The crushed bodies of the girls, huddled together under a buried tree, were uncovered by rain-drenched workers in the predawn hours.

James E. Bales, Lee County state's attorney, said investigations of the vast slide and reports of workmen showed the cascade of earth started from a bulldozer filling the 70-foot deep pit. The girls apparently were playing by the tree about halfway down the slope into the pit, he said.

Bales said the landslide that buried the girls probably occurred Wednesday, the day the girls disappeared from their trailer home about a quarter - mile away. Their disappearance sparked a wide search by hundreds of lawmen and volunteers.

John Gurnsey, 33, father of the girls, was foreman of the crews filling the huge pit. Bales said Gurnsey was working with a crew at another location when the slide occurred.

"One of his (Gurnsey's) graders pushed the tree and dirt on top of the girls," Bales told the inquest jury. Bales said the bulldozer operator was unable to see or hear the girls from the place where he was working.

Gurnsey, grief-stricken, returned to his home in Boscobel, Wis., Saturday with his wife and five other children to make funeral arrangements for the sisters. Before he left he told authorities:

"The girls most likely were playing under a tree trunk (in the pit) when the grader sent earth and debris crashing on top of them."

A pathologist reported Ruthie and Theresa died instantly, Ruthie of skull fracture and Theresa of a fractured neck.

The pathologist, Dr. E. R. Strauser, reported that Nancy probably lived "a short time" in the air pocket where the girls were found. He said she died of suffocation.

Recovery of the bodies from a dirt fill at the quarry shortly before 3 a. m. confirmed fears that had spread through this community of 20,000 in north-central Illinois at sundown Friday.

Workmen manning heavy construction equipment, shovels and spades had unearthed a child's shoe while combing through yard after yard of fresh dirt in the huge pit near the Medusa Portland Cement Co. plant two miles northeast of Dixon.

The distraught parents, residents of the community for only six weeks, identified the shoe as belonging to one of their three

Pentagon Admits Air Base Waste

Says Supplies Worth Millions Allowed To Pile Up In Northeast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department acknowledged Saturday that millions of dollars worth of unneeded supplies and equipment were allowed to pile up in Northeast Air Command bases, and that some of the material went to waste.

It said corrective action has been taken by both Air Force and Army commanders, and a special Pentagon policy is being developed for the handling of surplus supplies in remote areas.

The department's statement was issued by Perkins McGuire, assistant secretary of defense for supply and logistics. It was in response to a report by Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Investigations subcommittee last night that the Senate group was investigating evidence of waste and mismanagement at air bases in Newfoundland, Labrador and Greenland.

McGuire said military investigators had confirmed the subcommittee's charges of supply irregularities. He said more than six million dollars worth of excess supplies had been returned to the United States from Harmon Air Force Base, Newfoundland, leaving 14 million dollars worth still to be sent back.

Salvage

McClellan said still more supplies worth "many millions of dollars" were being salvaged at various bases.

McGuire, commenting on one incident cited by McClellan, said personnel of the 823rd Aviation Engineer Battalion, an Army unit operating with the Air Force, "buried about $33,000 worth of scrap, used and unused parts, or supplies and equipment."

"These have been recovered and returned to the supply system, with resultant loss estimated at about $6,300," McGuire said.

McClellan said the "personnel" involved was an unidentified warrant officer.

List Causes

McGuire said Pentagon investigators underscored "procedures, circumstances and conditions" that led to mismanagement and improper disposal of surplus supplies. Among the causes cited were:

1. Large quantities of parts and equipment were apparently abandoned at the northeast air bases after World War II. When these bases were re-established and built up during the Korean War the new supplies got mixed up with the old.

2. "A major construction program was started at various air bases in Newfoundland and Greenland immediately after the start of the Korean conflict, when Communist intentions were unknown."

3. "Tours of duty for personnel are relatively short, one year to 18 months. This has created a problem in the continuity of effort." Some units were inadequately staffed with supply specialists.

4. Inadequate facilities "resulted in supplies and material being stored in exposed or open areas where severe weather conditions in winter months caused rapid deterioration and obliterated identifying marks in some cases."

Syrian President Going Home; Spikes Resignation Rumors

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Syrian foreign ministry in Damascus announced Saturday that President Shukri Kuwatly would return from Egypt Sunday.

The announcement, coupled with information from authoritative sources here, spiked reports he would resign because of a leftist officer coup in his home country.

Kuwatly flew to Cairo last Sunday. The official purpose of his trip was to undergo medical treatment in Alexandria, Egypt, but his hurried departure came just as leftists seized full control of the Syrian army.

The Syrian president, a moderate rightist, has long struggled against takeover of Syria by leftist elements. Reports that he had resigned or would resign were viewed with much concern because he had been given credit for keeping Syria from falling completely under Soviet control.

Whether his return to Damascus will be accompanied by a swing of Syrian politics away from the left remains to be seen. Kuwatly held talks in Cairo with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, who was reported himself to be concerned over the pro-Soviet turn in Syria.

If the last vestige of Syria's so-called neutrality disappeared, serious complications would arise especially with Syria's neighbors —Turkey, Iraq, Jordan and Lebanon.

Jordan's King Hussein and Iraq's Faisal are both in Turkey—officially just by coincidence. But they are presumed to be conferring with Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and leaders from Lebanon on the Syrian crisis.

Dispatched from Washington Thursday to get into this Muddle was the State Department's ace Middle East troubleshooter, Loy Henderson. He arrived in Athens, Greece, early Saturday and is expected to be in Ankara by Sunday.

Presses Roll In Detroit As Strike Ends

DETROIT (AP) — Newspaper presses roared in Detroit's three major dailies Saturday for the first time in a week.

James R. Hoffa, midwest Teamsters boss who flew in Friday night after testifying before the Senate Rackets Committee in Washington, helped effect settlemen of a papers - closing labor dispute that erupted between mailers and publishers last Saturday.

Settlement capped an all-night negotiating session. The evening News and Times published Saturday editions and the morning Free Press joined them in issuing Sunday papers.

Although mechanical employes were summoned when a settlement appeared certain, Saturday advertising was skimpy. Sunday editions were far below normal size.

The labor dispute came on refusal of mailers to work beyond a 15-hour double - shift at the News a week ago. The mailers said 87 of them were fired. The News, which said less than an hour's work remained at the time of the dispute, said 67 were dismissed.

Identify Head Found In Bucket As Andersen Girl

CHICAGO, (AP) — The severed head of a female found Saturday in a bucket along Chicago's Lake Michigan shoreline was identified Saturday night as a missing 15-year-old girl.

The head contained a single bullet hole, police said.

Two oral surgeons examined the grisly specimen in Cook County Morgue and said they believe the girl to be Judith Mae Andersen, a high school student last seen Aug. 16 at a girl friend's home.

"In my opinion it is the same mouth," declared Edward Lynch, oral surgeon at County Hospital. Lynch made the identication from dental charts obtained from the office of Dr. Mitchell Juliussen, the Andersen family dentist.

Dr. William McNabb, dental surgeon at Illionois Research Hospital, also viewed the charts and agreed that it apparently was the Andersen girl.

The head was discovered two days after fishermen found a woman's torso in an oil can floating in the same lake harbor area. The

RED SKELTON PRAYS AT FATIMA SHRINE FOR SON'S LIFE

FATIMA, Portugal (AP)—Comedian Red Skelton spent an hour Saturday praying at the Roman Catholic shrine of Our Lady of Fatima for the life of his 9-year-old son, Richard, who is suffering from leukemia.

Skelton said on arrival from Lisbon: "God alone can save my boy's life, as science has done all it can."

After praying at the Chapel of the Apparitions, he was given a demijohn of Fatima water for his son to drink.

Newsmen Entering Red China Face Task Of Getting Facts

Editor's Note: Spencer Davis is a veteran of first-hand reporting in China. He covered the Pacific and Far East for the Associated Press from 1943 to 1950, was assigned to China and Manchuria in September, 1945, and to Manila the following year. Currently he is an Asian specialist for The Associated Press World Service, assigned to Washington.

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — American newsmen entering Communist China for the first time in eight years will be faced by a dual challenge.

That at least is the opinion of an Asian diplomat who has won highest honors in journalism and diplomacy—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romula, Philippine ambassador to Washington and representative on the U. N. Security Council.

"The success of their mission will depend upon whether the American newsmen dig out the Truth and whether Communist China will allow the truth to be told," Romulo said in an interview. "It's a challenge on both counts."

Romula was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for the dispatches he filed on a swing through Asia in the critical pre-war year of 1940. He crossed the newly opened Burma road from Rangoon to Chungking to report on conditions inside China during the undeclared war with Japan.

Correspondents who have covered China agree that the challenge of presenting a balanced, factual report is formidable.

The language barrier, dependence on interpreters, lack of communications and travel facilities in remoter areas, the general isolation of foreigners even in Peiping and urban centers are all hurdles made even tougher by rigid Communist controls and a powerful propaganda machine.

Recognition of this is shown by the selection of the first contin-

Lutherans End Assembly With Call For Work

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP)—With a call for Lutherans to join in a solemn partnership of work and witness, the Lutheran World Federation Saturday ended a 10-day assembly that scrutinized the broad sweep of church thought and action.

Adjournment came after assembly delegates voted to commend to the 50 million Lutherans they represent a 3,400 word statement of principles-expressing Lutheran thinking on a variety of church and global questions.

Shortly before retiring President Bishop Hanns Lilke of Germany declared the session ended. delegates bowed in recitation of the Lord's Prayer and joined in a Lutheran hymn.

In a final expression of fellowship, the federation Sunday afternoon will present a massive rally and service in front of the state capitol in St. Paul before an expected audience of between 50,000 and 100,000.

Thousands of Lutheran young people, including overseas delegates clad in national costumes, paraded through the Minneapolis Loop Saturday in observance of the federation's Youth Day.

GOP Solons Protest Naming McKinney To Atomic Peace Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans Saturday were reported protesting vigorously to President Eisenhower against the prospective appointment of Robert McKinney, New Mexico publisher, as U.S. representative to the new International Atomic Energy Agency.

Eisenhower apparently has decided to appoint McKinney, a supporter of Adlai E. Stevenson's 1956 bid for the presidency, as a gesture toward bipartisanship in the industrial field.

Democrats have been complaining that while they are asked to support the administration's foreign policies they have had no representation in top level jobs since the death of Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia.

Robert McKinney

The word that Eisenhower was considering McKinney stirred up something of a hornet's nest among Republicans in the Senate, which will have to confirm any appointment to the post. These members think the job ought to go to a deserving Republican.

The decision to name McKinney apparently was made at the White House without consulting either Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California or his deputy, Sen. Dirksen of Illinois. Sen. Hickenlooper of Iowa, top Senate Republican on the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee, was reported to have learned of it from Sen. Anderson (D-NM).

Rep. Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, was reported to have carried to the White House

VFW Official To Attend Girard Trial In Japan

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An official of the Veterans of Foreign Wars who will attend the trial of William S. Girard in Japan next month said today the case is "dangerous for morale."

The GI was turned over to Japanese authorities to be tried on charges of killing a Japanese woman who was collecting shell casings on an Army rifle range.

John W. Mahan, a Helena, Mont., attorney, and junior vice commander-in-chief of the VFW, will observe the trial for the veterans' organization.

"The woman killed was part of a mob taking shell casings from the fields where American military exercises were going on," Mahan said.

"Girard was under orders—and our country refuses to protect him. This is dangerous for morale.

"There is no jury in Japan, just the three judges. The conversations in court will be in the Japanese language and handled through interpreters. And appeals go back to the same judges. We just don't know if he'll receive a fair trial."

The VFW has protested surrender of Girard to Japanese authorities and now is backing a movement to renegotiate the agreement with Japan under which the American soldier is being tried.

Mahan, who leaves for Japan Sept. 9, also will visit 77 other American servicemen serving sentences in Japanese jails to study their cases.

Urge Priority System In Use Of Flu Vaccine

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Medical Society Saturday recommended a priority system for the administration of Asiatic influenza vaccine.

First to get available quantities of vaccine would be physicians, nurses and all hospital personnel. Second would be infants and pregnant women, persons with chronic diseases such as tuberculosis, diabetes or heart disease, essential personnel groups, including school teachers, firemen, police, transportation and communication workers and persons over 50 years old.

The committee noted: "The disease in the civilian population up to this time has probably been more prevalent than reports would indicate.

"Thus far, the pattern of these influenza outbreaks shows that the disease has been fairly mild in the younger age population. Complications and fatalities occasionally occur in infants and the upper age groups. No indication exists at the present time as to whether this disease will become more severe as it progresses.

"While the only specific measure to prevent influenza is vaccination, good health practices and attention to personal hygiene as well as early medical attention are important."

Judge William Clark Refused Seat At Girard Trial Opening Monday In Maebashi

TOKYO (AP) — A former U.S. Court of Appeals judge said Sunday the judge who will try Army Specialist William Girard "Maybe does not want an American judge to see how a Japanese court operates."

Judge William Clark, one-time Chief Justice of the U.S. High Commission Court in post-war Germany, said he was refused a seat at the Girard trial opening Monday in Maebashi District Court.

"It was a most discourteous thing," said Clark, who said he asked Japanese judge Yuzo Kawachi for one of 35 public seats in the courtroom. He said Kawachi "hung up the phone," when he asked for an interview on the matter.

The 35 public spectator seats are to be issued by lottery to the first 500 applicants Monday morning. The original 40 seats were cut by five to provide accomodation for "observers from the United States."

Clark said he was to have covered the trial for the Trenton, N. J. Times and other U.S. newspapers.

Several foreign correspondents in Tokyo have been refused press seats in the jammed courtroom. At least one other visiting American, San Francisco lawyer Melvin Belli, writing for the Hearst newspaper chain and the International News Service, has been unable to get a seat.

"I don't know what his (Kawachi's) move is in refusing any request," said Clark. "It could be because I have expressed my opposition to Girard's being tried in a Japanese court.

"He told me I could wait in the queue and take my chances. I'm not going to stand in any queue or participate in any lottery.

"I won't go into that courtroom now under any circumstances," Clark added. "I'm not going to have anything further to do with it."

Boston Faces 3rd Sunday In Row Without Papers

BOSTON (AP)—Boston faced the third Sunday in a row without local papers as striking mailers and representatives of six metropolitan dailies awaited a Monday State House meeting.

Gov. Foster Furcolo called both sides to meet with him the first of the week. He said he first would meet with officials of the Mailers Union and later with representatives of the publishers.

After that he said he hoped to get both parties in a joint conference.

A week ago Saturday union representatives rejected the final publishers' offer which would have given them a two - year package raise of $10.15 a week. The mailers have asked for an $8 raise now with a reopening wage clause for 1958. The present scale is $94.13.

Scientists Believe Life Will Be Created In Laboratory Test Tube Within Their Lifetime

MOSCOW (AP) — Science was pictured Saturday on the verge of racking the secret of how life began.

Two American scientists at an international symposium on the age-old mystery said the solution is only a matter of years away. The week-long symposium of 40 scientists closed Saturday.

The scientists seek to duplicate in the laboratory what they say the forces of nature did at the beginning of time. They want to create a living thing in a test tube.

S. L. Miller, a Columbia University biochemist who was one of nine Americans at the symposium, looked optimistically at the progress being made.

"I believe we will see life created in the laboratory within our lifetime," he said.

Another American, Melvin Calvin of the University of California in Berkeley, had this to say:

"Many things can interrupt. Discovery could be thousands of years away. But I do not believe that. I would say life under laboratory conditions is a few dozen years ahead—three dozen years."

A. I. Oparin, the Soviet Union's foremost academician and chief arranger of the symposium, said, "We make progress week by week."

The symposium opened last Monday when scientists from 17 nations gathered in Moscow's Trade Union meeting hall.

"The meeting has been fruitful in several details," said Linus Pauling, the Nobel Prize-winning chemist from the California Institute of Technology of Pasadena.

"It's amazing how closely scientists in their work all over the world parallel each other."

But one California scientist, who asked not to be identified, differed in one respect.

"Soviet scientists would like all of us to believe that only their political doctrine, mental approach and lack of religious beliefs are capable of creating a climate wherein the origin of life can be discovered," he said.

"Most of us do not agree and we find great pleasure and consolation in the reading lists and references given at the end of all Soviet scientific papers. Invariably the sources are nearly half American in addition to numerous British sources."

Before the conference opened Oparin said the scientists had not expected to come up with any answers to the secret of life. But he said the symposium would add to man's knowledge.

Oparin emphasized that scientists must cooperate to find the solution to life's secret. The answer, he said, "cannot be supplied by one man, one country or one type of scientist."

Mis Delight Cooke, who witnessed the ceremony, wore a brown cotton summer dress fashioned with a full skirt and Miss Beth Winding, also a witness, wore a green summer dress.

The bride graduated from the Virginia high school with the class of 1956 and has been in nurses training the past year at Memorial hospital in Springfield.

The groom graduated from the Beardstown high school with the class of 1955 and has returned from Germany, where he spent thirteen months in the Armed Services as a Specialist 3/c. He will be sent to a base in the States, in the near future, where he will be joined by his wife.

Dog Pack Attacks Calves, Hogs In Jersey County

JERSEYVILLE — Henry McCoy, who operates a farm in the vicinity of the White schoolhouse, southeast of Jerseyville, came to the office of Sheriff Herman C. Kirchner Friday morning to report depredations being committed by a pack of dogs in the locality where he farms.

McCoy recently paid $90 a head for a half dozen pure bred gilts. The dog pack attacked the hogs and one of them was so badly cut to pieces by the predators that she died.

McCoy also reported that dog packs were invading the pastures where his cattle are grazing. Just now he has 26 black angus cows with calves by their sides and the dogs have been centering their attacks toward the calves.

"Two weeks ago a pack of dogs attacked the cattle," McCoy reported, "and it was a sight to see the way in which the cows formed a circle, buffalo fashion, about their calves to protect them from the dogs. Before the battle ended, the cows had given the dogs the worst of the situation."

Survey Of Youth Gangsterism Shows Increase In Delinquency And Violence

NEW YORK (AP)—A policeman's son, caught in the middle of a youth gang war outside a tavern, is beaten and kicked to death.

Three youths flirting with two girls think that two other boys are laughing at them. They stab one to death and the other flees.

A crippled boy, unable to run from a gang of young hoodlums, is stabbed fatally. Said one of the attackers, a 14-year-old boy: "I wanted to get the feeling of a knife going through bone."

These eruptions of teen-age terror all occurred within one recent week in New York City. The sudden, unexpected outbreak focused new attention on the youth crime problem in New York as other juvenile crimes broke surface the globe.

An Associated Press survey of youth gangsterism in the United States and abroad shows a general increase in juvenile delinquency and in many places an upswing in serious violence. Some cities, like Boston, Detroit, Paris and Rome, seem to be holding their own or improving.

Here are some of the reports:

Los Angeles—Arrests up 22 per cent over last year.

Chicago—About the same number of arrests but the nature of the crimes is becoming more serious.

Philadelphia—A 12 per cent increase in arrests.

Detroit — With youth gangs broken, arrests are on the downgrade.

These reports came from overseas:

Tokyo — A steady increase for the past three years in juvenile crime.

London — A sudden uprising in juvenile barbarism.

West Berlin — About the same as last year.

France—Gangs, on the American order, are virtually nonexistent and juvenile crime is not a problem.

Rome — The first danger signs have appeared in the past six months and juvenile court authorities are watching. However, organized youth gang crime as such has not reached Italy yet.

The three New York slayings raised to 22 the number of homicides attributed to youngsters under 21 in the city since the year began. There were 29 such cases in all of 1956.

To meet the danger, the city threw in 536 rookie policemen from its police academy to patrol danger areas on foot from 6 p.m. to midnight. Incidents declined immediately.

Detroit police said there were no organized gangs in their city operating in crime. In fact, the Juvenile Division reported there was a 14 per cent decrease in teen-age crime in the first six months of this year compared with a corresponding period last year.

The division said that a tough gang known as the "Shakers" was broken up several years ago and that police have kept on top of the situation since then. A preventive drive is in the works to keep the police load within limits. As in many other cities, Detroit has youth courts where corrective measures are dealt out to youthful violators through a large array of civic, fraternal and state organizations.

Police in Philadelphia believe they are holding their own, noting that juvenile crime has increased very slightly while the city's population has grown hardily. Philadelphia police list 20 juvenile gangs of such names as the Morrocans, the Bottoms and Barbarians.

In both Philadelphia and Detroit, young hoodlums have stopped wearing uniform clothing, believing that this attire attracts police attention.

While the youth crime rate has held nearly steady in Chicago, police note there are more strong-arm, burglary and rape cases. Police files list such gangs as the Rebels, Apaches, Red River Rats, Hell's Angels and Royal Hoodlums.

Police Lt. Michael Delaney said the most youth gangs were organized originally as social clubs and many hold to this purpose.

Most groups wear uniform windbreakers or jackets and copy dress, hairstyles and mannerisms.

Boston report that there are no recognized youth gangs and there are no fatalities traceable to juvenile crime this year just as there were none last year.

Ready For School To Start? Principals Answer, 'Sure'

Several times in the past ten days or two weeks the question has been asked of an elementary school principal, "Are you about ready for school to start?"

Quite often the questioner is quite surprised to learn that the entire administrative staff and all the secretaries of School District No. 117 have been on the job full time since the middle of August.

Some people seem to believe that when the first day of school comes everything just starts automatically. That just can't be so. In a school system the size of Jacksonville School District No. 117, many hours of work each fall go into the planning and preparations for the approaching school term.

Book and supply orders have to be opened, checked and distributed to teachers; children have to be assigned to rooms; schedules have to be planned and coordinated; as well as many other things of a similar nature that are waiting to be done. During this time also, many problems come up that require conferences with parents and there are always some late registrations for kindergarten or first grade.

Summer Time Problems

The principals of the junior and senior high schools have all of the problems and tasks already mentioned plus the additional one of arranging individual study programs and schedules for from 600 to 1,000 or more different boys and girls who will attend their schools. They also have the problem of planning and scheduling a much broader program of student activities and inter-school contests and games.

The Director of Special Services may still be engaged in finding teachers for his department. He will be planning meetings and working on schedules which must be coordinated with all of the other departments and in all buildings. He will also be doing many of the things that the building principals have to do.

The District Superintendent and his staff are in a last minute rush to fill unexpected vacancies on the teaching staff; to prepare all of the many materials that must be ready for teachers on the first day; as well as keep up all of the regular routine of reports, plans, payrolls and problems that are a part of running a large, widely spread school system. They must also employ and supervise the training of other employees, such as cooks for the cafeteria, bus drivers, custodians, etc.

Discuss Policies, Practices

The last few days before the children go back to school are given over to teachers' meetings. Two days are for the benefit of teachers who are new in the system. There are general meetings at which they talk about District No. 117 policies and practices and discuss things of general interest. There are meetings with representatives of the art, music, audio-visual and special services areas. There are building meetings where the new-comers ask questions and discuss things pertaining to their particular teaching assignments. There is time given for the new-comers to get acquainted with each other, the administrators and representatives of the teaching staff in a more informal situation.

One day, the last day before the children start back to school, is taken up with a meeting with the entire school teaching staff. Part of the time is spent in a general meeting with the Superintendent and part of the day each principal works with the staff in his building. The time in the building is used planning, discussing and arranging so that when the children arrive the next day, everything possible will have been done to get them off to a smooth start.

So the next time you ask or hear someone ask a school administrator, "Are you about ready for school to start?" you will have a little better understanding of what has gone on to allow "Mr. Principal" to reply, "Yes, we're about ready to start."

Announce New Hours For Jersey County Offices

JERSEYVILLE — In compliance with a new state law making it illegal to record or file legal papers on Saturday, the office of the Recorder of Jersey county was closed Saturday and will continue to close on Saturdays so long as the law is in effect.

Since the circuit clerk's office and the recorder's offices are combined in Jersey county, the four Circuit judges of the district, Samuel Smith, Dewitt S. Crow, Creal Douglass and Clem Smith, have issued an order that the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court be closed on Saturday of each week until further order of the court.

The Jersey County Selective Service office will be open only on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays of each week in the future. Mrs. Agnes Walsh, office secretary, will be at the Selective Service office in Hardin each Thursday and Friday.

New Parking System Adopted In Pittsfield

PITTSFIELD—A new plan for parking on the public square which has been tried out the past week has now been adopted by the City Council and will soon be put into effect. The problem of parking has long been before the council, merchants and residents of the city, with the present plan meeting the approval of many.

According to the new plan there will be only one way traffic on three sides of the square, the east, the north and the west, with entrance to the square from highway 36-54 which constitutes the south side, to be made only from the southeast corner, progressing around the square to the south west corner as far as the highway.

There will be three rows of marked parking spaces for cars on the three sides of the square which are wide enough for parking on each side and a row of cars in the middle. The plan was in affect for trial only, on the north side of the square for a week, and it is believed by city officials and business men and residents, that the plan will be a great improvement over the presently congested parking, and a plan previously tried with an off the square parking lot which did not seem to answer the important question.

Mayor Troutner and his council have given a great deal of time and thought to the problem, and now think that the new system will be a good one for the community and spaces for parking will soon be painted on the area.

Pittsfield wants to be a town which will provide plenty of free parking space for shoppers and visitors, and it has been agreed by the Mayor and business men that the new plan will do much to provide it.

To assist drivers in becoming accustomed to the change the city will have a man on each side of the square to help with the new system of parking until it is well understood, and it is also understood that there will be no arrest tickets or fines for those who may make a mistake in parking.

The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse represent Conquest, Death, Famine and Slaughter.

Take Defendant In Murder Case To Carrollton

CARROLLTON — Greene county officials said Friday that Clifford Arnold Melton, 24-year-old St. Louis laborer accused of the murder of Mrs. Betty McGee, has agreed to extradition from Missouri.

Assistant State's Attorney L. A. Mehrhoff said that deputy sheriffs Leonard Stone and Harold Pruitt were bringing Melton from St. Louis Friday. Melton was sought in connection with the death of Mrs. McGee, whose body was found Aug. 12, on Alternate Route 67 between White Hall and Carrollton.

Sheriff Fred Ballard signed a murder complaint against Melton in a justice of the peace court Wednesday. A preliminary hearing has not been set, but is expected soon.

Melton has denied knowing Mrs. McGee. He has admitted to officials that he was with a woman in Greene county the day before her body was found.

World's first mile of concrete road was laid on Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich., in 1908.

Bloodmobile Will Visit August 31 In Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE — The Bloodmobile will make its next visit to Jersey county Aug 31, and the unit will be set up at the First Baptist church of Jerseyville from noon until 6 p.m. (DST). This is the first visit of the Bloodmobile to this locality during the present fiscal year and other visits are sceduled here for in November and in January.

Postmaster Arch D. Nelson, chairman of the Jersey County Red Cross Chapter, is supervising the arrangements for the one day visit of the unit on Aug. 31.

To offset rejections, more than 200 donors will be needed to meet the quota of 150 pints assigned to the county for the coming visit.

Cards are being mailed to previous donors requesting them to indicate their intention of keeping appointments, but Chairman Nelson is stressing the fact that a large number of new blood donors is needed. An appointment is not necessary, and anyone who finds that he can give blood should go to the church during the stated hours between noon and 6 p.m.

The blood supply at the St. Louis Center is reported as dangerously low, and in view of the long holiday coming up over Labor Day, a heavy drain on the supply is anticipated if conditions continue as heretofore.

Heart Fund Results

The Illinois Heart Association headquarters in Springfield has announced that the 1957 Heart Fund Campaign in Jersey county totaled $485.50.

TECHNICAL REPORT ON MARILYN

STILLWATER, Okla., (AP)—Oklahoma State University speech professor Dr. Paul Heinberg, who does research in phontics, agrees Marilyn Monroe's voice is "sexy."

"But," adds the prof, "it's not because she is low-pitched. It's because she is breathy."

His research shows Miss Monroe's vocal cords part and come together in a rather regular cycle, producing a simple tone of low intensity.

Miss Monroe, Heinberg said, uses more lung power to speak in her "breathy" voice than do ordinary persons, because a greater amount of air is needed to hold the vocal folds open.

He further defined her voice: "It's a pure tone plus a sort of hiss."

Dr. Brewster, Jerseyville, Dies; Funeral Held Friday

JERSEYVILLE — Funeral services for Dr. Bert Marion Brewster of this city were conducted Aug. 23 at 2 p.m. from the First Presbyterian church of Jerseyville. The Rev. M. Edwards Breed, pastor of the church officiated. Interment was in the Oak Grove cemetery.

He was the son of the late Thomas M. and Missouri E. Brown Brewster and was born March 5, 1882. He died suddenly Aug. 21 at 4:50 p.m., at his home in this city, of a heart ailment.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Beatrice Baptist Brewster; one son, Bertrand M. Brewster, of Alton; two stepsons, William E. Johnson, of Los Angeles, Calif., and Dr. David Johnson, of St. Louis, Mo.; seven grandchildren; one brother, Charles D. Brewster, of Rolla, Mo..

Dr. Brewster was born on a farm near Rolla, Mo., and was a direct descendent of Elder William Brewster and his wife, Mary, who came to America with the settlers on the Mayflower.

He was graduated from the medical school of Washington University in St. Louis in 1905, and, after a year's internship in St. Louis City Hospital, came to Jersey county Oct. 6, 1906 to begin general practice. He located in the village of Fieldon in western Jersey county and continued to practice there until he came to Jerseyville in 1937 and established his office and home.

His early practice was during the "horse and buggy" days, and he experienced the hardships common to the general country doctor of that period in traveling muddy or snowbound roads to get to the homes of his patients. During nearly 51 years of practice, he officiated at the birth of 3,746 infants.

In 1955 he was honored by the Jersey County Medical Society in observance of his Golden Anniversary as a physician and received a gold service pin from the State Medical Society at that time.

To Hold Youth Crusade

"I'm all mixed up," is not an unusual expression from the young people of today. They are sincerely seeking for an answer to their problems—social-moral and religious; individual and group problems are very real to them. They are entitled to an honest answer from the society where their lives will be spent.

Every one is "self-conscious—other-conscious and God-consious" and there must be an intelligent answer to the questions we so often hear from our young people. A personal knowledge relative to the facts of "God and Self" are as essential as any other knowledge that mankind seeks to emphasize today. This is the sphere of human experience that the Church and Christianity must function in.

Central Baptist church, of which Rev. William H. Spencer is pastor, has secured a group of young men from one of America's outstanding Fundamental Christian Colleges who will be with the church Aug. 25, through Aug. 28 each evening at 8 o'clock. They are from Minnesota, Florida, Illinois, Alabama and Djakarto, Indonesia.

Each evening there will be special music, both instrumental and vocal, followed by a message of especial interest to sincere young men and young women.

The services are open to everyone and especially to the young men and women of Jacksonville and surrounding area. Fathers and mothers are urged to attend with the rest of the family. A special invitation is extended to the young people.

Class Of 1909 To Hold Reunion In Pittsfield

Pittsfield—Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Gillison, of Paramount, California, are visitors in the city. Mrs. Gillison is the former Miss Ethel Rainwater of Pittsfield, a graduate of the Pittsfield high school with the class of 1909, and since she is the only one of the living members of the class who is a non-resident of Pittsfield, the local members hurriedly arranged for a class reunion while she is here, which will be held at the Community Center on Sunday beginning with a dinner at noon.

Five members of the class of 16 are deceased, Mark Smith, Ida Smith, Harry Underwood, Frances Allen Stutzman and Mary Garvin. The ten who have retained their residence in this city during the years are: Dr. E. B. Berry, Mrs. E. B. Berry, Flora Kibler Shadel, Helen Shadel, Minna Bauch (who received the honors at graduation), Helen Fletcher, (awarded second honors), Clarence Williams, Pearl Chapman Wills, William Kaeser and Sadie Orrill Long, with Mrs. Gillespie making the 16th member of the class. Together with their husbands or wives and a few invited guests they will enjoy reminiscing following the dinner.

Forty eight years ago when this class graduated from the "new Pittsfield high school" which is now the Higbee Junior High School, there were seven high school teachers, and so far as is known by members of the class not one of them is now living.

According to one member of the class the "three r's which were in the curriculum of their early school days, may well be described at this time as the "three b's" "bulges, bifocles and possible bunions."

It seems unusual that such a large percentage of the class are still residents of Pittsfield. All are esteemed citizens of the city.

Martha and Janie Rupp are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kelly this week. Also at the Kelly home are Mrs. Kelly's nieces, Nancy and Bess Mortlind, of Hardin, and Carol Dyer, of Nebo, grandchildren of Mrs. Lena Foote, of Nebo.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Government bonds turned higher this week after losing ground the two previous weeks. The advance coincided with a flurry of debate in Wall Street over whether interest rates may be on the verge of leveling off.

Corporate bonds again were lower on average in slow trading. Industrials and rails were lower. Utilities and investment quality issues were unchanged to a little higher. Foreign liens were quiet and steady.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, (AP)—Stock market prices were trimmed by an estimated $5,700,000,000 this week as a mood of uncertainty over near term prospects became tinged with fair doses of pessimism.

It was the steepest drop since the week ended June 22. The estimated cash loss, however, was not disastrous in view of the fact that the total value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange is around 215 billion dollars.

The week's performance also constituted the fourth straight weekly decline. But there was no particular emphasis in the way of heavy selling for the week as a whole, the average daily turnover being only 1,984,305 shares which is below par for the year so far.

Wall Street experts ascribed much of the fall to technical causes. The element of news was brought into play at times but there were occasions when the market ignored news and went its own way and for its own reasons.

One underlying uncertainty was the question of what business and industry will do after Labor Day. Together with this was general doubt as to the probable trend of the market itself in the post-Labor Day period, traditionally a time when the market establishes a trend which frequently carries on close to the year's end.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $4.60 to $173.60. There were plenty of experts who believed that a test of the February lows was more than likely, referring to the so-called "Lincoln lows" when the AP 60-stock average declined to $168.00 on Feb. 12th, Lincoln's Birthday. There wasn't much separating the present figure from that low point of the year.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

protests by himself and Sen. Schoeppel of Kansas, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

4-H Club Activities

The Happy Workers 4-H Club held its final meeting at the home of Caroline Willner on Aug. 20. The meeting was opened with the club reciting the pledge to the flag led by Carolyn Ward, and the 4-H pledge led by Margaret Curtis. Roll call was answered with each member revealing what she is looking forward to during the coming school year.

During the business session the club voted to decide which of its pictures to place in the club scrapbook. A picnic, for the members and their families, was planned and a committee, consisting of Caroline Willner, Marie Curtis, Carolyn Ward, and Betty Curtis, was placed in charge. The remaining time was used to complete records.

The meeting was adjourned and delicious refreshments of iced tea and brownies were served by the hostess.

The tenth meeting of the "Peppy Peppers" 4-H club was held Monday, Aug. 12, at the home of Meri Sue Wallace.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Janice Surratt. Ten mebmers answered roll call. The pledge of allegiance to the flag, and the 4-H pledge were repeated by the girls.

The record books for this year are due now, and the leaders helped each girl with her book.

Plans were made for the radio broadcast Aug. 17 from WLDS. The junior leader, Sandra Aufdenkamp, was mistress of ceremonies. The program included the pledge of allegiance to the flag, a song, "The More We Get Together" by the group, a short talk by each member, piano solos by Carol Ann Becker and Lynn Ford, and a group of choral readings by the group. The radio program closed with the 4-H pledge.

BEANS LOSE AS MUCH AS 8 CENTS IN WEEK'S TRADING

CHICAGO, (AP)—The week's dealings in Board of Trade futures pushed soybeans as much as eight cents lower, but left other grain contracts little moved except for rye and the December wheat delivery which lost ground.

Market influences focused to a large extent upon the weather and its omens for developing corn, soybean and spring wheat crops. On the whole, the weather was bearish, boding good harvest for the farmers.

There was considerable speculative support in wheat price levels built up largely on reasoning that continuing heavy export movement and a good volume of government loan tie ups may bring about tightness of 1957 crop supplies before the 1958 harvest comes.

Wheat ended the week Friday 1 to 3½ cents lower than the previous Friday, a trend reversal which saw the greatest loss in the December contract. Corn was ½ to ⅞ higher; oats were ⅛ to 1¼ higher; rye was 4½ to 6⅞ lower; soybeans 6⅝ to 8¼ lower and lard 30 cents higher to 58 cents lower per hundred pounds.

Corn futures rallied from seasonal lows hit earlier in the month. Old crop corn deliveries received encouragement by a heavy movement of corn from interior storage, with more than 50 per cent of Chicago cash arrivals being cars in the Commodity Credit Corp. account. Another sympathetic price factor was strength in the local cash market where the premium was 5½ cents over the basic delivery.

Soybeans reacted during the week to heaviness in the oils and fats markets, and easy demand for meal except near the first of the week. There was also the bearish influence of private reports that crop progress in Illinois showed wonderful improvement, and an upscaling by large commercial houses of the 428 million bushel Aug. 1 government crop estimate by as much as 25 million bushels.

During the week, the Census Bureau reported that soybean crushings in July were just under the 24 million bushel amount, somewhat less than had been expected. But this sympathetic factor was offset near the end of the week by news that some beans were being cut, and new crop supplies might become available for tender on open September futures contracts.

ing, better performance, more safety, more comfort, greater value—is a far superior product to its 1948 counterpart in every respect."

In stating he shared Reuther's concern over inflation, Ford told him, "I sincerely regret that the only concrete proposal you have advanced is an empty one and sidesteps your primary responsibility for the rising cost-price spiral."

In a statement Friday commenting on the rejection of his proposal by GM and Chrysler, Reuther said his union will continue to press for a joint union-management fight on inflation. He said, "We want these corporations and the American consumers to know that we are not giving up on this positive and constructive plan to fight inflation just because of this first refusal."

Exeter Resident Participates In Ohio Trapshoot

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — Silence settled over this Miami Valley village Saturday as the final echoes of a 1½ million shotgun shells fired at the 58th Grand American trapshoot died away.

Vic Reinders, University of Wisconsin professor from Waukesha and newly elected president of the American Trapshooting Assn., wound up the week-long clay target carnival as the country's no. 1 shooter.

Reinders broke 961 of 1,000 tragets—600 at 16 yards, 300 at handicaps and 100 at doubles—and won the over-all championship.

The profesor also captured the all-around title with 386 of 400 targets blasted in the North American 16-yard championship, the Grand American handicap and the National doubles.

Lela Hall Frank of Los Angeles outshot the feminine contingent with 911 of 1,000, eight ahead of 17-year-old Helen Thomas, also of Los Angeles.

Recover Bodies Of Three Girls From Old Quarry

A short time later five other shoes were found: some had stockings neatly tucked inside, indicating the girls took them off to play barefoot in the soft dirt.

Heavy rains pelted the diggings turning fresh soil into a sticky quagmire and adding hazards to the probing operation on the sharply inclined, 75-foot slope.

Six hours and one inch of rain later diggers slinging shovels of mud hit an air pocket beneath an uprooted tree.

"We found them," someone shouted up to the 100 or so rescue workers and the newsmen silhouetted by half a dozen floodlights on the rim of the quarry.

Muffled sobs could be heard amid the din of clanking excavator scoops.

"Thank God we found them," someone gasped.

There had been speculation as the digging progressed that the old quarry might yield only six small shoes and nothing else.

Workmen gently lifted the three small bodies from their sitting positions. The girls' hands were fixed in front of their faces as though to ward off death which enveloped them in their unintended tomb.

Ambulances carried the bodies through axle-deep mud and driving rain back into town.

The grief-torn parents had been urged to leave the scene around midnight to get some sleep. They did not see the volunteers unearth their blond daughters.

J. Fred Hofmann, Dixon police commissioner, with the assistance of Lee County Sheriff John Stouffer, had organized the search effort, a drive welded together by the community's determination to "find the Gurnsey girls."

Wednesday evening the search began, small at first because, Mrs. Gurnsey had said: "I think they got lost and couldn't find their way home."

Friday local volunteers, National Guardsmen, Boy Scouts, high school boys and, as Hofmann put it, "well, just about everybody"—swelled the search party and fanned out across Lee County. The Dixon cut sole plant closed at noon to allow its 40 employes to join the hunt, and rescue headquarters numbered the searchers at more than 1,000.

City officials of Boscobel, Wis., where the Gurnseys lived until six weeks ago, sent a busload and several carloads of volunteers.

Late Friday the search converged on the quarry when some one spotted some small footprints at the rim of the largest pit—the quarry that the girl's father's crew was filling.

The funeral for the sisters will be held Monday morning in Boscobel's Immaculate Conception Church.

Study Hoffa's Testimony For Possible Perjury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials will be asked to study, for possible perjury prosecution, Teamster leader James R. Hoffa's testimony that he failed to recall his many dealings with racketeers.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Rackets Committee, disclosing this Saturday at a news conference, conceded that it would be difficult to prove that Hoffa lied when he pleaded memory failure.

But he said many of Hoffa's mental blanks were almost too much for any reasonable man to believe.

"Therefore," he said, "I'm going to send this transcript to the Justice Department to pursue that phase of it."

In resuonse to a reporter's question, McClellan declined to say flatly that he though the man seemingly headed for presidency of the Teamsters Union lied during his four-day stay on the witness stand.

However he did say: "There are some strong circumstances here that indicate he may not have been telling the truth when he said he couldn't recall."

The bouncy Teamster's most frequent memory breakdowns during questioning about his secret relations with the New York labor terrorist, Johnny Dio.

Wisconsin Elects Successor To McCarthy Tuesday

MILWAUKEE, Wis., (AP) — On Tuesday Wisconsin will elect a successor to the late Joseph R. McCarthy, to serve 16 months in which control of the Senate may be of solemn consequence.

But the Wisconsin elector grown accustomed through the years to fiery controversy among candidates for this Senate seat, appears to be some hat less than aflame with the spirit of the times.

Here is a sampling of three eligible voters, collared during a pleasant August afternoon, as to what they'll do on election day:

Said one: "Well, I'm not crazy about Walter Kohler, but I like him better than Bill Proxmire."

Said another: "Maybe Proxmire will be all right. I like him better than Kohler."

Said a third: "What election?"

California Woman Involved In Two Accidents

Mrs. Herbert McLeod, of Pasadena, Calif., was the unfortunate victim of two accidents Saturday. She was taken to Our Saviour's hospital following both mishaps.

Elma Lee Dorsey, of Pittsfield, was fined ten dollars and court costs as a result of the first accident, which took place east of town early in the afternoon. She reportedly swerved to miss hitting a dog in the road and became involved in the accident with the McLeod car. The only casualties were Mrs. McLeod and the dog.

Immediately following the first accident Mrs. Leod was taken to the hospital where she was given emergency treatment and released.

Later in the day while she and her husband were driving north on South Church street, they became involved in another accident at the corner of West State street and South Church.

Mrs. McLeod was again taken to the hospital suffering from what appeared to be a temporary breakdown. She was again given emergency treatment and released.

Richard Lee Edwards, 222½ East State street, was fined 35 dollars for reckless driving and ten dollars for having no driver's license with him, as a result of the State street-Church street accident.

NewsmenEntering Red China Face Dual Challenge

gent of the 24 newsmen picked to enter the country. Virtually all are seasoned reporters in their 30's, 40's, or 50's, with years of Far East and Chinese experience to serve as their frame of reference. Some can speak Mandarin, others are familiar with a number of dialects.

For the Westerner, China can be bewilderingly complex.

For example, in 1945 Chinese reports in Nanking said Peiping, then held by the Nationalists, was under siege by the Communists. American correspondents in Peiping checking this report circled the city's massive pink walls, rode by train to Tientsin without interference, explored the countryside in vain. They sent a belated dispatch to their papers and news agencies that the siege report was exaggerated.

Weeks later it appeared the original Chinese information was correct. The shadowy Communist 8th Route Army was slowly applying an economic squeeze on Peiping by holding up supplies in the hinterland. There had appeared to be no tangible evidence of this when the news was first published.

The challenge of reporting in China likely has not lessened under its Communist masters.

SYRIAN PRESIDENT GOING HOME; ENDS RESIGNATION TALK

ington indicate Western leaders are counting on Syria's Arab neighbors to isolate her as a means of checking her swing to the left. Experienced observers here feel that such expectations are pure wishful thinking.

Observers here concede that monarchs like Hussein, Faisal and Saudi Arabia's Saud are naturally unhappy about the growth of Soviet influence in the Middle East. Pro-Western Lebanon also is disturbed.

But if things came to a showdown it might prove easier for Syria to isolate her neighbors than the other way round.

Because of its geographic situation, Syria is in a position virtually [illegible] of its four pro-Western neighbors. By cutting the Iraq Petroleum Co. pipeline, Syria could stop production in Iraq's Kirkuk oilfields and pull the rung out from under that country's booming economy.

By shutting off Transarabia's tapline, Syria could close the channel through which roughly one-reaches its markets. Saud can ill-afford to lose oil revenue at this time.

By closing its frontier with Jordan, Syria could isolate that little kingdom from its normal sea outlets in Lebanon. Jordan has a primitive seaport at Aqaba in the south but it can handle only a small amount of trade.

By closing its frontier with Lebanon, Syria could economically strangle that republic.

JUDICIAL DISCOVERY

BOSTON (AP) — Municipal Court Chief Justice Elijah Adlow has discovered what a "cuff list" is.

The occasion was the case of Charles DiFranco, who police said had in his possession $238, 13 betting slips and a cuff list.

The judge fined DiFranco $50 after it was explained the list was a roster of customers who operate strictly on credit.

$14.5 Billion In State Taxes Collected In Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The poor taxpayer, who gets whopped whichever way he turns, was slugged for a record 14½ billion dollars in state taxes during the fiscal year that ended June 30.

This was in addition to the 39 billion dollars he paid Uncle Sam in direct income taxes, plus a still undetermined amount in local levies.

State taxes are a gold mine of revenue that produces a bigger yield each year. A Census Bureau report Saturday shows the 1957 fiscal year figure was 8 per cent higher than a year ago, about 50 per cent higher than five years ago and about 370 per cent higher than 15 years ago.

Across the nation the 14½-billion-dollar total works out to $86.75 per person. Per capita taxes in the various states, however, range from $145.13 in Nevada to $51.96 in New Jersey.

The Census Bureau warned against drawing too many conclusions from the difference in per capita rates because the states differ greatly in the scope and intensity of their public services.

California led the 48 states in tax collections with $1,637,000,000. New York was next with $1,440,000,000. The next ranking states, considerably down the line, were Pennsylvania with 905 million dollars and Michigan with 771 million.

All but four states—Delaware, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota—showed a greater tax harvest in fiscal 1957 than in the previous year.

S. F. Hansmeier Former Concord Resident, Dies

Samuel F. Hansmeier, a Concord resident for many years, passed away at 10 p.m. Saturday at the St. John's hospital in Springfield after a lingering illness of about four months.

He was born Oct. 21, 1873, near Arenzville. He was a son of August and Anne Kruse Hansmeier. He was married Feb. 24, 1904, to Mary Jane Gaddis. She preceded him in death Feb. 1, 1952.

Surviving the the following children: Mrs. Etta Drawve, of Rushville; Mrs. Mildred Illias, of Virginia; Farrell, of Jacksonville.

One son, Virgil, was killed in the services Nov. 11, 1944. One brother, Harve Hansmeier, Jacksonville, and six grandchildren also survive. Two brothers, William and Edward, preceded him in death.

He had made his home with his daughter in Virginia for the past two years. He was a lifelong member of the Concord Methodist church.

torso is believed to be the body of the Andersen girl.

Harry Bartels, 29, an amateur skindiver, found the head in a can caught between pilings at Montrose Harbor on Chicago's North Side. Bartels was at the harbor to volunteer his skindiving skill in a police investigation of the torso discovery.

The torso had been hacked with adze or saw, police said. Missing from it were the head, the right arm and left hand. One official said the butchering was done by someone with dissecting skill.

The girl's father, Ralph Andersen, said his daughter last was seen leaving the home of Elena Abbatocola, a girl friend who lives near the West Side Andersen home. He said Judith Mae left the Abbatocola home about 11 p.m., Aug. 16.

Andersen told a newsman Saturday night he is not convinced the body is his daughter's.

"I can't believe it's my daughter until my own dentist (Juilussen) definitely identifies the teeth," he asserted. "I think the identification is only about 90 per cent accurate now." Andersen said he was trying to reach Juilussen at Eagle River, Wis., where the dentist is vacationing.

Andersen said he also is skeptical because his daughter had a small pox vaccination scar on her left arm. He said when he viewed the body he found no such scar.

Police have been working on two theories: (1) the torso and oil drum may have been dumped from a lake boat into Lake Michigan; (2) the torso may have been cut up at some location, stuffed in a can and dumped into Montrose Harbor from shore.

Also found in the can with the head were two hands, an arm and a section of forearm. All were believed to be part of the same body, police said.

The Andersen girl disappeared a few days after her broken romance with a sailor, friends told police. The sailor stationed at Norman, Okla., had written Judith Mae and told her he intended to marry another girl.

HE GOES HOME TO MOTHER WITH HALF THE POTS, PANS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mrs. Joan Stocks won a default divorce decree and a half-ton pickup truck. Her husband James was given custody of a cement mixer.

He got a can opener from the kitchen wall. She won a portable opener from a kitchen drawer. They divided the pots and pans, also the rest of the community property.

Mrs. Stocks, 26, an auto club reservations manager, testified Friday that Stocks, 30, an industrial arts teacher, visited his mother each morning and evening on his way to and from work. She said also that he once slapped her and told her to leave. But it was he who went home to mother.

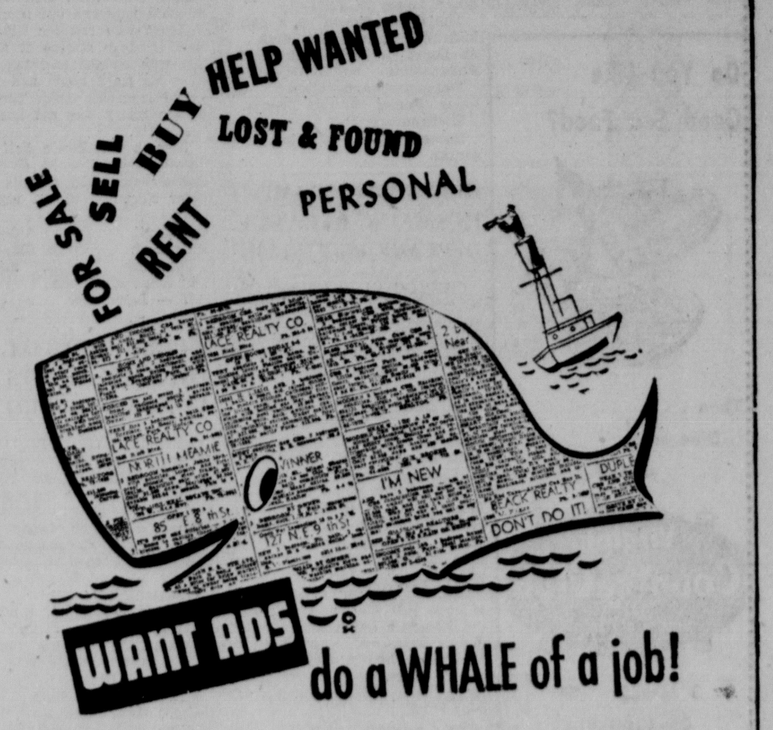

Mrs. Stocks will receive $1 a month token alimony.

Trying to get the dog into the truck, Mills found there was too much Dane and not enough cage.

As he pushed and pushed, the other dogs squeezed out of the cage and took off. With them went the Great Dane.

Harry Grayson s SCOREBOARD

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

SAN FRANCISCO—(NEA)—The first thing Horace Stoneham discovered upon his arrivel in San Francisco was that the National League Giants had moved into a red hot American League town.

Through circumstances rather than design the Golden City long since was thrown into the American League camp. Down through the years, American League scouts consistently have beaten those of the National to prized products around San Francisco Bay.

Golden Gate Park and Bay area sandlots contributed most generously to the subsistence of the great Yankee dynasty. A long list of stickouts could be named starting before Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig and running through Frank Crosetti, Lefty Gomez and Joe DiMaggio down to Gil McDougald, Jerry Coleman and Billy Martin.

The man on the street here would have preferred any American League club other than Washington to the Giants. The National League just doesn't ring a bell with him.

THIS WAS BROUGHT OUT by a newspaper poll of more than 500 people picked at random from the telephone book. Only a comparative handful could answer the question, "Who is manager of the New York Giants?" despite the fact Bill Rigney is out of Walnut Creek, a suburb of Oakland across the bay. Most of them were acquainted with Willie Mays, of course, and a few knew a fellow named Antonelli or something like that although they could not recall his first name. A few singled out Bobby Thomson largely because of his epic three-run home run in the 1951 play-off with the Dodgers. Dusty Rhodes was remembered for his pinch-hitting in the 1954 World Series. Other than that the new customers of the Giants immediate future had meager knowledge of the club's personnel.

The same people readily rattled off 20 or more Yankee names, fully aware that even Casey Stengel doesn't know where they are going to be from day to day. No one attempted to name the regular lineup or batting order.

The group was equally familiar with the Red Sox, San Francisco being a Boston farm for the past two years. The Sox helped American League sentiment, as did Joe Gordon, who currently has the Seals out in front in a four-club Pacific Coast League pennant pursuit.

THE RED SOX LAST SPRING flew all the way from their Sarasota, Fla., training base and packed Seals Stadium with 21,000 on the evening of the severest earthquake California has experienced since 1906. The crowd got a tremendous belt out of Ted Williams, another California product, hitting the ball eight miles. While recurrent shocks were going on, the Bosox played to 58,000 in three games over the week-end.

The Indians have appeared in San Francisco each spring since they made Tucson their conditioning base. In 1947 they drew more than 27,000, the biggest baseball assemblage in Pacific Coast history. The outfield was roped off and more than 10,000 were turned away. While training on the coast, the White Sox attracted turnouts of 80,000 in San Francisco.

This doesn't mean that the Giants won't be supported or develop rivalry in San Francisco. Los Angeles and San Francisco are as natural rivals as the Giants and Dodgers have been since the days of John McGraw and Wilbert Robinson.

The point here is that the New York Giants practically have to be introduced in San Francisco.

Cardinals Strengthen Second Place Position, With 5-2 Win Over Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Herm Wehmeier retired the first nine batters to face him, then survivied three rocky innings, ast he St. Louis Cards strengthened their second place position Saturday in the National League pennant race with a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Del Ennis had a good day against his former teammates. He started the scoring with a second inning double, and then came home when Waler Cooper dropped a single between Granny Hamner and Rip Repulski.

Richie Ashburn opened the fourth with a double, moved to third on Hamner's single and then tied it up when Eddie Bouchee beat out an infield hit.

They moved in front briefly when Teddy Kazandski opened the fifth with his third homer of the season.

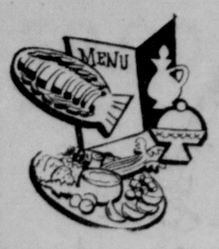

But the Cards stormed back in the sixth. Wehmeier beat out a bunt that went for a hit and then made it to second when Kazandski's throw went into the stands behind first base. Eddie Kasko singled. Wehmeier went to third and then scored on a long fly by Alvin Dark. Kasko stole second and then scored on Ennis' second hit, a single to left.

The Cards picked up a pair of insurance runs in the ninth.

DEFENDING CHAMP IN SAILING REGATTA DECLARED '57 CHAMP

CHICAGO (AP) — Malcolm MacNaught, defending champion in the International 110 Sailing Regatta, Saturday was declared 1957 winner on completion of a five-race series off suburban Wilmette.

Most of the leading finishers were from the East Coast.

MacNaught, of Hingham, Mass., amassed 126 points as his 24-foot boat, Black Cow II, finished third in Saturday's final race.

One quarter point behind was Leigh Quinn of Hull, Mass., who brought My Tern in first Saturday in the windward-leeward six mile race in heavy winds and choppy water.

One yachtsman, Lance Brown of suburban Evanston, fell from the Naughtie Lady, a Greenwich, Conn., boat, and was picked up by Robert Deans, New Rochelle, N.Y., whose boat, Tor Ness, lost 10 positions while making the rescue.

Hambletonian Will Be Run In Two Divisions

DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Two stable representatives flipped a coin today, throwing the 32nd running of the Hambletonian into an entry field of 21 trotters, second largest in history, forcing the $110,000 harness race to be run in two divisions.

Seven minutes before the entry deadline of noon (CST) representatives of 20 trotters had each posted the $1,000 entry fee. Then glancing at the clock, two officials from the ABC Stables of New York City flipped a coin to see if they would enter their horse, Section Man.

After they flipped the coin they entered the trotter, forcing officials to call for a divided race because Hambletonian rules permit only 10 horses to run abreast.

Only one other running of the Hambletonian, at Goshen, N. Y. in 1953 had more entries—23. In 1951 there were 21 starters. Last year's 20 starters was the third highest number enter entered.

Senators Take 6-3 Win, Break Losing Streak

DETROIT, (AP)—Truman Clevenger, a last-minute starter, broke Washington's three - game losing streak Saturday by pitching the Senators to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers in a steady drizzle which turned to a heavy downpour in the final inning.

Sore-armed Camilio Pascual was scheduled to make his first appearance since Aug. 7 but because of the elements, manager Harry Lavagetto started Clevenger.

The 25- year - old righthander scattered nine hits in winning his seventh game against four setbacks.

The loser was Jim Bunning. He went eight innings, was charged with five of Washington's runs and suffered his sixth loss against 15 wins.

Catcher Lou Berberet led the Nats with a single and his sixth home run—a 400-foot smash. He scored three runs.

Pirates Rap Redlegs, Bell Hurts Ankle

PITTSBURGH, (AP)—Three Pirate batsmen collected two hits apiece in a 7-hit attack to support Ronnie Kline in Pittsburgh's 4-1 victory over Cincinnati Saturday.

Dick Groat, Bill Mazeroski and Bob Skinner hit the early pitching of Brooks Lawrence, who was given the defeat. Hersh Freeman came on in relief in the eighth.

Kline now has five wins in 21 starts.

A Redlegs rally came in the eighth with the Pirates leading 2-0 when big Ted Kluszewski batted for Lawrence and doubled off the center field wall. Gus Bell then doubled with one out scoring Hal Jeffcoat who ran for Kluszewski. Bell tried to stretch it to third, but was caught and tagged. He hurt his right ankle and was assisted from the field. The extent of the injury was not known immediately.

Then in the Pirate half of the eighth, Bill Virdon, Groat and Skinner combined on hits off reliefer Freeman to get two more runs.

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Spinello Saturday defeated Carl Ahrens of Kankakee, 8 and 7 in the 36-hole finals of the Cook County Amateur Golf championship.

Spinello, 19-year-old student at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, dominated play throughout and at the end of 27 holes was 8 up over Ahrens.

Spinello finished the first 18 with a one over par 69 despite fairways made heavy by rain Friday night. Ahrens had a 6-over par 74 for the first 18.

ANOTHER HOLE-IN-ONE

Charles Collins

This seems to be "open season" for holes-in-one. Charles W. Collins, 540 West Greenwood just knocked a perfect shot on No. 1 at Nichols park. Every golfer who hits a hole-in-one says "if I could just do that in a tournament!" Mr. Collins did do it in a tournament.

He was playing Bill Hart in the first flight of the Nichols Park championship when he booted his hole-in-one on one.

Tom Moore also witnessed the thrilling accomplishment.

Patterson Denies Bitter Racial Feeling Entered Into Title Fight Thursday

SHELBY, Mont. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson Saturday denied bitter racial feeling entered into his title fight with Pete Rademacher Thursday night at Seattle.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer said Saturday that 24 hours before the championship bout Patterson was "outspokenly bitter about what he termed the 'white hope' aspects of the fight."

Enroute to New York, the Negro champion left his train here to answer a telephoned request for additional comment. He said he had not read the Post-Intelligencer story, and added:

"These things you'll read all the time. I've even been quoted as saying worse.

"Even if I did feel that way, I surely wouldn't say anything like that publicly. But what's more, I don't feel like that way about it."

The story, by sportswriter Emmette Watson, said Patterson was interviewed at his training camp near Kent the day before he knocked out Rademacher, the Olympic heavyweight king. Watson wrote:

"Speaking of the 22 Georgians who raised $250,000 guarantee to gain Rademacher his shot at the title, Patterson said:

"'In New York they couldn't have raised $250 for this kind of fight. Rademacher couldn't have raised the money in any other place but Georgia, or the South. That money had to be raised someplace where they don't like colored people.'"

Patterson also was asked at Shelby about another quote attributed to him by Watson. This was the statement, "If I beat Rademacher up badly or if I knock him out, then I'm not going near Oklahoma. I won't go farther south than Philadelphia . . . Well, no farther south than Washington, D.C."

The heavyweight king replied at Shelby:

"I'll be in Oklahoma in another two weeks. Doesn't that tell you enough."

He explained that he planned to visit his father-in-law, Mathew Hicks, in Lawton, Okla.

In Seattle, Mike Jennings of Columbus, Ga., a principal financial backer of Rademacher's title challenge, said the race issue "never was involved in any way" in raising the $250,000 guarantee.

MIDGET RACING CAR DRIVER KILLED AT WISCONSIN FAIR

Henry Nykza, 37, of Chicago Heights, Ill., was thrown onto the track when his safety belt snapped from the impact of the crash. The yellow caution flag went up and other drivers avoided him.

Nykza was taken to County General Hospital and pronounced dead on arrival.

The accident occurred at the 69-mile point in the race. Nykza had been racing for about 12 years. The race continued.

Indians Rally In Ninth But Yankees Win, 10-4

CLEVELAND (AP)—Scoring seven runs in the fifth inning, the New York Yankees trounced the Cleveland Indians 10-4 before a crowd of 14,506 Saturday.

Three Cleveland runs were knocked in by rookie Joe Caffie, recently brought up from Buffalo, who hit his first major league home run in the fifth inning.

Tom Sturdivant, who held a 10-0 lead at one point, posted his 12th victory, but was unable to finish. The Tribe knocked him out with two runs in the ninth.

Mickey Mantle rapped a double in two official times at bat, boosting his average from .373 to .374.

Andy Carey led the Yankees 11-hit attack with four-for-four, a triple and three singles.

The loss was charged to Don Mossi, who was forced to leave the game in the fifth with a pulled back muscle. The bases were loaded and the Yanks led 2-0 when he departed.

The Yanks broke the game wide open in the fifth on seven runs, three hits and two Indian errors.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel sent Art Ditmar in the ninth to stop an Indian rally that scored two runs.

Relief Pitching By 'Skinny' Brown Gives Orioles Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Baltimore Orioles pitchers, practically unhittable so far as the Athletics are concerned, came up with their 15th victory of the season over Kansas City Saturday, taking a 4-2 decision behind the great relief pitching of Hector (Skinny) Brown.

The Orioles picked up a quick three runs off Ned Garver in the first two innings and that was enough although the Athletics, trailing 3-1, filled the bases in the sixth off Ken Lehman with none out.

That was where Brown, the knuckle-balling nemesis of the A's came into the picture. He gave a base on balls to Hal Smith, forcing in one run, after getting Woody Held on a liner to third baseman Billy Goodman. Then he got out without further trouble on popups stroked by Joe Demaestri and Irv Noren.

From that point on, the Athletics fired only blanks as Brown pitched hitless ball.

Just to make the going a little tougher for Kansas City, Al Pilarcik, ex - Athletics outfielder, blasted a home run in the first of the ninth off Tom Morgan, third pitcher for the home forces.

Donovan Holds Bosox To Nine Hits, Chisox Take Easy 7-1 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Donovan held the Boston Red Sox to nine hits Saturday and pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 7-1 victory. It was the 7th triumph in succession for the big righthander and his 15th of the year against 3 defeats.

Ted Williams, battling Mickey Mantle for the American League batting championship, made one hit in four times at bat as his average sagged to .381. He knocked in the Boston run, however, with a double which followed a two-bagger by Billy Klaus in the fourth inning.

Minnie Minoso collected three of Chicago's seven hits and knocked home three runs.

Ike Delock, Boston relief specialist making his second start of the season, was in constant trouble because of his wildness. He walked seven men before being routed in the fourth. Five of the men he walked scored.

Luis Aparicio opened the Chicago offensive in the first inning with a walk, stole second for his 21st theft of the year, and scored on a single by Earl Torgeson.

Delock loaded the bases with walks in the third and Sherm Lollar unloaded them with his first triple of the year.

Two walks mixed with singles by Nellie Fox and Minoso gave the White Sox another pair of runs in the fourth and brought Bob Porterfield to the rescue of Delock.

Friday Night Scores

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

What goes here? The New York Yankees, who seldom let a good man get away, suddenly have lost three of four with ex-mates doing the damage while their American League lead has dipped to 5½ games.

So what happens to the Yankees? They lose two of three at Kansas City, with ex-Yankee Ralph Terry and Jack Urban the winning pitchers and ex-Yankees Woody Held, Bob Cerv and Billy Martin batting in or scoring the big runs.

Then ex-Yank Gene Woodling took a crack at them Friday night, rapping a two-run homer and two singles in his first four trips before doubling home the winner as Cleveland made off with a 5-4 decision in 10 innings.

That whittled another game off the Yankee lead as the Chicago White Sox, with Billy Pierce winning his 17th on a four-hitter, defeated Boston 4-1.

In the National League, Milwaukee blew a 2-0 lead in the ninth and lost 3-2 at Brooklyn. The Braves retained their 6½-game lead as Philadelphia rallied for a 3-2 decision over second-place St. Louis with ex-Cardinal Rip Repulski driving in all the Phillies runs. The Cards now have a one-point edge over Brooklyn, also 6½ back.

Cincinnati finally shelved the longest losing streak in the NL this season — 10 — beating Pittsburgh 6-0 on Joe Nuxhall's four-hitter. The New York Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-2 in 16 innings, matching the longest games in the league this year while loser Bob Rush went all the way for the longest stint in the majors.

In the other AL games, Connie Johnson beat Kansas City with a three-hitter for a 2-1, 12-inning Baltimore victory; and Detroit pounded Washington 13-4 with Al Kaline driving in five runs.

The Yankees scored three in the ninth, starting with Gil McDougald's home run, for a tie that chased Ray Narleski. But Mike Garcia came on and killed the rally by striking out Mickey Mantle, who was 0-for-4 and skidded to .373.

Relief ace Bob Grim walked Bobby Avila and lost it as Woodling tried to duck away from a pitch and wound up with a two-bagger down the left field line.

Pierce, the majors' top winner, kept Ted Williams hitless in four trips.

The Sox locked it up against Frank Sullivan in a rain-interrupted second on a walk, error and singles by Larry Doby and Sherm Lollar that made it 2-0.

Gene Conley stretched his shutout string over the Dodgers to 19 innings before the Brooks, blanked on four hits, scored on Sandy Amoros' double and a single by Charlie Neal in the ninth. Don McMahon came on and gave the Brooks two unearned runs on his own throwing error and Gino Cimoli's clinching two-out single.

Don Drysdale won his 12th in relief.

Repulski hit a two-run homer in the eighth that won it for the Phils. Joe Cunningham doubled and scored the first Card run and drove in the other with a fly.

Nuxhall had three of 13 Redleg hits off loser Bob Purkey and three relievers while giving the Cincy staff its first shutout since July 24.

Rush struck out 10 and blanked the Giants on three hits for eight innings before Willie Mays singled and Ray Jablonski doubled in the 16th. Stu Miller won it as the fourth Giant pitcher.

Johnson beat the A's for the fifth time without defeat, giving up two hits and a run in the first on a double by Gus Zernial. Bob Nieman homered in the first.

Kaline and Charlie Maxwell hit three-run homers for the Tigers, who hit their season high in runs. Clint Courtney's two homers counted all the Nat runs off Duke Maas, now 9-9.

Musial May Be Back Sooner Than Expected

PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—Stan Musial may be back in the St. Louis Cardinals' lineup sooner than expected.

Manager Freddie Hutchinson said Saturday Musial will be used as a pinch runner in the resumption of a suspended game with the Pirates at Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

Thus Stan's consecutive game streak which ended Friday night after he injured his left shoulder swinging at a pitch the previous evening, will officially be lengthened to 895. Musial missed the first part of the suspended game when it was played several weeks ago.

Musial said Saturday his injury is coming along so well he hopes also to play in the regulation game against the Pirates on Tuesday night.

Hartack Spurs Jewel's Reward To Blazing Finish

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Hartack, the nation's top jockey, spurred Jewel's Reward, a 12-1 shot, to a blazing finish which overhauled the odds-on favorite Alhambra for a 1¼ length triumph in the $144,550 Washington Park Futurity Saturday.

It was the 32nd stakes victory of the year for Hartack, who took off on Jewel's Reward with the jockey's nose bleeding and stuffed with cotton wads from an injury received in the preceding race when a flying clod struck him.

Braves Blast Three Home Runs In Fourth, Beat Dodgers, 13-7

BROOKLYN, (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves chased Johnny Podres with a three - homer barrage in the fourth inning and routed seven relief pitchers Saturday to overpower Brooklyn 13-7.

Holding their 6½ game National League lead over St. Louis and dropping the Brooks 7½ behind, the Braves wrapped it up with two big innings after Nippy Jones Hank Aaron and Andy Pafko had broken up a scoreles duel with solo home run blasts in the fourth.

The leaders, winning the key three game series, 2 - 1, scored five times in the sixth on five hits to take an 8 - 2 lead, then broke out with four more in the ninth after Brooklyn's desperate rallies had cut their lead to 8-7.

Felix Mantilla, filling in for the injured Johnny Logan, applied the clincher with a three - run, ninth inning homer. The blow, Mantilla's third hit, was off Danny McDevitt, eighth pitcher used by the Dodgers as they tied a National League record.

The Braves used Ernie Johnson and Lew Burdette in relief of starter Bob Trowbridge. The victory went to Burdette.

Jaycees Sponsor Kids Baseball Trip To St. Louis

The Jacksonville Junior Chamber of Commerce once more is sponsoring its annual Kids Baseball Trip to St. Louis. Co-chairmen Roy Cooper and George Twyford are in charge of this project and have planned a very fine day for everyone.

The game that will be seen will be between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Redlegs and it should be a real dandy of a ball game. Children from the ages 10 through 14 may come to the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday, Aug. 31, between the hours of 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. to sign up for the trip.

Again this year we will need around 60 adults to donate automobiles to make the trip to St. Louis. Anyone donating a car will receive a free pass to the ball game. Last year we are sorry to say that we had to leave some children behind because we failed to have enough automobiles to take care of them.

So Dad, if the boy or girl wants to go to the ball game, why not take your car and have a good time also? But first check with your neighbor and see if they plan to take their car and work together so that no one will be left out again this year. If anyone cares to donate a car please call radio station WLDS at CH 5-7171 and they will take your name and how many children you plan to take.

The caravan will form at the corner of South Clay and East College avenue, where the children will receive refreshments before departing on their trip to St. Louis. The caravan will plan to leave around 8:30 a.m. D.S.T. on Saturday, Sept. 7. The caravan will proceed to St. Louis in a group and will return to the city of Jacksonville individually around 7 p.m. that evening.

Updegraff To Face Campbell In Golf Finals

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ed Updegraff, a balding 6 - foot surgeon from Tucson, Ariz., Saturday moved into the Western Amateur golf finals against Walker Cupper Joe Campbell by upsetting Phil Rodgers 2 and 1.

Campbell, the pre - tournament favorite from Knoxville, Tenn., nosed out Jim Vickers, 28-year-old Wichita, Kan., oil executive, 2 and 1 in the other semifinal match on the tough 6,902-yard old Warson Country Club course with its 35-36—71 par.

The 35 - year - old Updegraff, showing extra stamina in this marathon tournament, closed out the match with a birdie 4 on the 518-yard 35th hole.

Updegraff was four up after 27 holes but Rodgers won No. 28, claimed No. 30 with a 25 - foot putt for a birdie four, and won No. 31.

Then the cool, 160-pound Updegraff a former two-time Arizona state champion, sank a 20 - foot putt to win No. 32 with a birdie three.

Co-medalist Rodgers took 33 but then came the fatal 34th where Rodgers three-putted.

Georgia Has Plan To Move Negro Families North

ATLANTA, (AP) — A plan that could result in resettlement of Negro families from Georgia into the better residential areas of the North and West will be offered to the Legislature in January.

Rep. A. A. Fowler Jr., of Douglas County said he will offer a bill to create a state real estate commission that would be empowered to send agents north to quietly buy up property.

This property would be leased "at very attractive terms" or sold to "carefully screened, worthy and qualified" citizens or former citizens of Georgia.

Fowler, an eight-year member of the Georgia Legislature and a political independent, said he does not consider his plan as "hate legislation." Rather, he said, it might show the residents of good white neighborhoods in the North that the very thing the South opposes — racial integration—"could happen to them."

He attributed the current civil rights measures in Congress and other integration moves to "do-gooders" and stated: "They've pushed this integration thing and yet they're not doing anything about it. We're going to help them by putting Negroes in previously all-white neighborhoods in the North."

"Before we move into locations we plan to seek advice about the best spots from Sens. Javits (R-NY), Humphrey (D - Minn) and Douglas (D-Ill) and other sponsors of civil rights legislation," Fowler said.

Sen. Douglas declined comment and Javits and Humphrey were not immediately reachable.

Redhaired Teen - Ager Wins Women's Amatuer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Seattle's Joanne Gunderson, a happy-go-lucky redhaired teenager, won the National Women's Amateur golf championship Saturday trouncing veteran Ann Casey Johnstone 8 and 6.

The long-hitting 18-year-old played steady near par golf on the hot Del Paso Country par 38-36-74 course while the greying Mrs. Johnstone, 34, and making her fourth try for the big silver cup, was erratic in every department.

Miss Gunderson, a finalist last year, at times played superb golf, especially on the 5 par 426 yard 22nd when she smacked four wood 200 yards out of a trap to the edge of the green. That shot raised a rousing cheer from the galery of several thousand. But Joanne lost that hole, one of four to a birdie.

The easy going youngster, smiling all the while and applauding whenever her opponent made a good shot, made hash twice of the 4 par 350-yard first hole. She sunk birdie 20 foot putts both times.

She dropped a downhill 15-footer on the 28th to go six up.

At 18, Miss Gunderson becomes the second youngest player to win this 57th anunal event.

Up to Saturday, Mrs. Johnstone, of Mason City, Iowa, had been playing the best golf of the tournament, going seven under par in her four matches. Joanne, who replaces Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ontario, as queen of amateur women, was five over in one match alone—the 20th hole duel she won from Judy Eller, the National Junior champ from Old Hickory, Tenn.

The champion was three over on the morning 18 and one over on the final 12 holes on the 6,368-yard tree lined layout. Mrs. Johnstone was eight over in the morning and five over in the afternoon.

Search Plane 7 Times After Call About Bomb

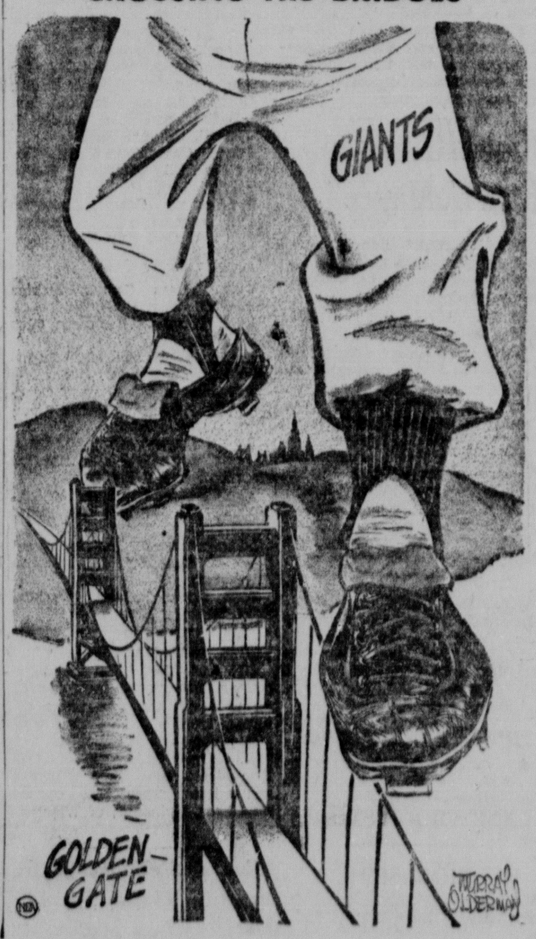

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—A phone call which American Airlines officials attributed to crank caused a search of an airliner seven times Saturday. None of the searchers turned up a bomb which the caller said might be on the plane.

R. A. Hotter, airlines sales manager here, said his office received call from a man this morning requiring about service from here to St. Louis.

Hotter said the man was given the information about flight 470. He quoted the caller as saying, "That flight might not arive. It might have a bomb."

President Pilots Plane Part Way To Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower, once a licensed pilot, took over the controls of his two-engine plane in the air Saturday and flew it briefly. He apparently is the first American President to pilot an aircraft.

Col. William G. Draper—the man who sat alongside while Eisenhower flew the plane as co-pilot—reported later that the President "does a real job of flying."

Draper, Eisenhower's Air Force aide and a regular pilot, told newsmen the 66-year-old President had the controls for only a few of the 23 minutes it took to fly from Washington to the Gettysburg airport this morning. Draper handled the plane the rest of the way on the flight of about 80 miles to the Eisenhower farm here.

Eisenhower had a pilot's license for a time during the years between the two World Wars. He let it lapse, however, and so far as is known had not actually flown a plane for several years until today.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the first president to travel by plane. Dewey Long, White House transportation officer then and now, said so far as he knows Roosevelt never took over the controls.

President Truman says he never helped pilot his official plane.

Eisenhower came to his farm home for two days of golf and rest with his son John, an Army major, and the son's wife and four children.

The President's wife still is convalescing from an operation at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington.

FRED STONE UNAWARE WIFE IS DEAD

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) —Veteran actor Fred Stone immobilized by loss of sight and a heart disorder, has been resting comfortably at his North Hollywoor home—unaware that his wife died 11 days ago.

Stone's daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Collins said Saturday that the 84-year-old showman has not been told of his wife's death because his doctor fears the shock might be too great. She said the doctor, now out of town, plans to wait until he returns to give Stone the news, so the actor will have treatment immediately available if it is required.

Mrs. Stone, known on the stage as Allene Crater, died at a Burbank hospital after suffering a heart attack. She was 77.

Jury Finds Hawks 'Not Guilty' Of Zone Violation

A verdict of "Not Guilty" was returned by a jury of 12 men and women after a several hours trial of the suit of the City of Jacksonville against William L. Hawks, filling station proprietor, in the court of Justice Homer Conover. Hawks had been charged by the city of violating a zoning law.

The case centered around a service station on Mound avenue, which for some years was owned by the Conoco Company, and which Hawks purchased. He opened a service station there July 15.

The City of Jacksonville charged, through a complaint filed by Lewis C. Gotschall, building inspector, that Hawks violated the use regulations applicable to Class A single family dwelling district when he opened the filling station, which had been vacant for a considerable length of time.

First called for trial Thursday in the court of Police Magistrate Fred Daniels, the case was taken on a change of venue to the court of Justice Conover.

Hawks' attorney, B. G. Colburn, contended that the petroleum company had never given up the key to the filling station during the period it was vacant, and that the building legally was still a filling station under the zoning law. The City was represented by Attorney Bruce Thomson.

David Prince Building To Become Section Of JHS; Much Remodeling

When students return to school the last of this week, they will see numerous changes in the physical plants of the school system.

This is especially true of the high school students because of the extensive remodeling that has been done in the David Prince building, which will be used for high school classes.

New asphalt tile floors have been laid throughout the building, which has been redecorated in pleasing and colorful shades. Acoustical ceilings have been installed in the third floor which will be used for the high school music department consisting of the band, orchestra, and vocal groups.

New doors adorn the gym and the old auditorium, which is now used as the band and orchestra room. The runways connecting the two buildings have been cleared of lockers and other equipment, and the walls repainted in anticipation of the heavy traffic between the two buildings.

Repair and remodeling work at the various schools has been under supervision of Assistant Supt. J. Merle Wade, who is in charge of buildings and grounds.

In the high school building the auditorium has been completely redecorated. New curtains have been installed on the stage and new drapes on the side windows. New drinking fountains have been installed in the second and third floors. All thermostats in both the high school and the David Prince building have been completely overhauled to give greater efficiency during the heating season. The high school office has been enlarged and the receptionist's office is now one door west of the old location.

Enlarge Supt. Office

The superintendent's office has also been enlarged. New asphalt tile floors have been laid in all of the offices.

The high school gymnasium has been repainted on the outside, and all outside doors have been restored to their natural finish. New glass backboards have been installed on the main playing floor, and the freethrow lanes have been widened to the 12 foot length required by the latest rules changes.

The outside of the Franklin and Jefferson schools has been repainted. The Jefferson school kitchen has a new asphalt tile floor. More of the basement area in the Washington school has been excavated, and one storeroom and two conference-type rooms have been provided in this area.

New Asphalt Tile Floors

In the North Jacksonville and South Jacksonville schools, the rooms formerly used as the girls' shower rooms have been converted to general purpose rooms. In addition to the removal of the lockers and plumbing fixtures in these rooms, new asphalt tile floors were laid in both, and the North Jacksonville room has a new acoustical ceiling. Additional heating was installed in the South Jacksonville room.

A new blacktop playground has been provided for the Jonathan Turner Junior High students as well as blacktop on the driveway and bus loading area. A blacktop driveway and parking area has also meen provided for the bus garage.

Summer work included the installation of new dark shades in several kindergarten rooms, bulletin boards in various rooms, new shelving in many areas, and many other items of a general maintenance nature.

In addition to all this work, the custodians and maintenance men have carried on their regular summer work which puts the schools in first class condition for the opening of school on Aug. 29, Assistant Supt. Wade said in discussing plans for opening the new term.

Find Truck In Fatal Crash Near N. Berlin Was In Wrong Lane

A Sangamon County coroner's jury ruled that a Springfield truck driver was in the wrong lane of traffic at the time of a fiery crash last Sunday near New Berlin in which three persons, including the trucker, died.

Coroner W. C. Telford conducted the inquests into the deaths of Ira Taylor, 47, of Alvordton, Ohio; his wife, Sibble, 37, and John Gardner Hess, 26, of Springfield.

The jury returned its verdicts after hearing testimony by two state policemen who said skid marks from the truck indicated the crash took place in the Taylor truck's lane of traffic, and after hearing a tape recorded statement given by Taylor to Dr. Telford at St. John's hospital, before Taylor lost consciousness and died. In that statement Taylor said the truck driven by Hess turned into Taylor's side of the road as the two trucks approached each other on U. S. 36-54 a mile west of New Berlin. Taylor was west bound and Hess was driving east.

Woman Riding In Cab

Taylor, with his wife riding in the cab of his truck, was en route to Lebanon, Kan., with a cargo of house trailer axles and parts. Hess was at the head of a string of trucks owned by the Dunbar Trucking Co. of Springfield, returning here after hauling the Holiday on Ice show from the state fairgrounds to Sedalia, Mo.

Two other Dunbar truckers, in line behind Hess, testified during the inquest. They were John Foley, the driver of the second truck behind Hess', and Ivan Eggers, driver immediately behind Hess who pulled Hess from his wrecked truck and helped haul Taylor away from his burning vehicle.

Eggers said Hess had not appeared sleepy when the truckers stopped at Pittsfield to refuel and eat, a few hours before the crash, and said Hess had been driving "straight as could be" down the highway just before the collision. He and Foley both said they saw the Hess truck "pushed six to eight feet into the westbound traffic lane" immediately after the impact which both testified they did not see.

Jacksonville Man Testifies

Taylor's tape-recorded statement showed Taylor told the coroner he didn't know what caused Hess to pull in front of him "unless he fell asleep— he just pulled right across." Taylor also told the coroner that just before the impact his wife cried out "My God, look out," and added "those were the last words I ever heard her say."

Jurors found that Mrs. Taylor, mother of eight children, died instantly in the wreck of partial incineration, while Hess died the following morning of shock following burns and a severe head injury and Taylor died of shock following extensive burns the day after the crash. Rescuers could not free Mrs. Taylor from the burning cab.

After marching around the square, the parade halted at the southwest corner and the five cars carrying the queen and her court rode five abreast through the south side of the square followed by the remainder of the procession.

They took a position at the southeast corner of the square and, as the Virginia band gave a concert, judges awarded prizes to the entrants in the colorful float parade as they walked behind the queen and her court.

COMMENDED FOR SERVICE IN FEDERAL FARM PROGRAMS

Morgan County easily leads the rest of Illinois ASC committees for the number of members and employees who have served in the administration of federal farm programs enacted during the past 42 years.

This was the assertion made last week when Ewell Gerdes of Oakford came to Jacksonville to present certificates of meritorious service and 20 year pins to five Morgan county residents. Gerdes is fieldman for 10 West Central Illinois counties.

"Now and then you find a county ASC office that has people who have been associated with the farm program for 20 years, but no other county has five such people. In fact, their combined service records total 114 years."

The certificates and pins were recently authorized by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson. The Illinois certificates are signed by Sidney V. Caughey, chairman of the state commmittee.

Rust Resistant Oats Prove Far Superior In U.I. 1957 Tests

Rust resistant oat varieties proved their superiority as a result of heavy leaf rust attacks.

C. M. Brown, in charge of oats breeding at the University of Illinois, reports that leaf rust this year was unusually severe and that the state may not have another siege like this for several years. However, he feels that farmers will be better off to play safe and plant varieties that show some tolerance to leaf rust.

Yield figures on university test plots show the superiority of rust-resistant types. At Urbana, Clinton plots seeded on May 2 yielded 8 bushels an acre while rust-resistant Clintland growing right next to it made 41 bushels. At DeKalb, Clinton yielded 65 bushels an acre while Clintland made 105 bushels.

The Big Difference

Clinton and Clintland are mid-season varieties. Their percentage is about the same, Brown points out. The big difference is that Clintland is resistant to leaf rust.

Early maturing varieties fared better because they were further along when rust hit. At Urbana, Fayette yielded 42 bushels while Nemaha made 27 bushels. At DeKalb, Fayette made 95 bushels and Nemaha 90 bushels. Fayette is resistant to leaf rust while Nemaha is considered to be tolerant to it.

Susceptible to Stem Rust

Stem rust can also cause damage, Brown warns. Clintland and Clinton are both susceptible to Race 7 of stem rust. But this usually is not as damaging as leaf rust.

Clarion and Waubay are recommended varieties but they were damaged severely by leaf rust this year.

Garry and Sauk have tolerance to leaf rust and are recommended in northern Illinois. In central Illinois these varieties were planted late and with only tolerance to rust they showed severe damage.

Newton, a mid-season variety, also has tolerance to rust, but it was damaged in central Illinois. It made good yields in northern Illinois. Normally this tolerance would be adequate in the central part of the state.

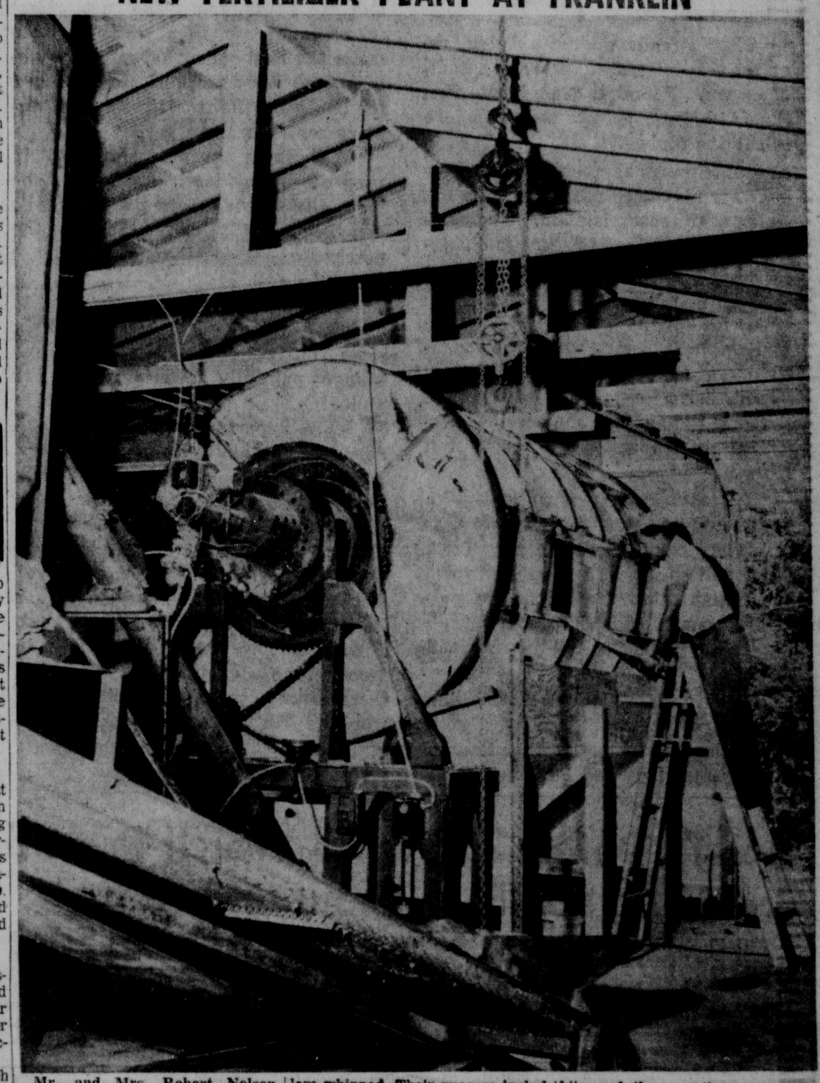

Check Before Buying

Some extremely high prices are being paid for Clintland seed oats for next year in central Illinois. Brown says such prices are not justified since the supply of Clintland seed should be adequate and prices reasonable. He suggests that those who can't find Clintland or other rust-resistant seed should check with a reliable seed dealer or with their state crop improvement association.

NEW FERTILIZER PLANT AT FRANKLIN

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson, chemists who left their big city jobs to move to Franklin and raise "a better chicken," have embarked on something new.

They usually keep 10 to 12,000 chickens in their plant alongside Route 104. For years they have been giving away the manure to anyone who would haul it away. They have also been giving away the offal to a fertilizer company.

They decided to go into the fertilizer business themselves. They made trips to the New England states and studied over the many failures experienced by other broiler people who attempted to convert by products into valuable plant food.

They're sure they have the problem whipped. Their process includes two new chemical reactors upon which they plan to apply for patents.

New Building

After working out the formula they began accumulating suitable machinery and arranged for the construction of a 30 x 40 foot concrete block building just west of their plant.

The integral part of the machinery layout is a drying drum lined with stainless steel. It was once used to dry shredded cocoanut and it cost $18,600 when it was new. The Nelsons found it in Chicago, available when the original owners modernized their plant and changed their drying operations from batch to continuous flow.

The plant will be in operation three times a week. That's how often chickens are dressed.

Down To 6 Per Cent Moisture

The drum is 10 feet long and six in diameter. It revolves around a stationary core heated to about 120 degrees by a gas burner. The drum holds about a ton and a half of fresh material, with an average water content of 75 per cent. It takes about an hour and a half to bring this down to 6 per cent.

The material is then augured into a mill that shreds it into tiny bits and then another augur elevates it into the large mixer shown at the extreme left. Here three chemicals, ammonium nitrate, superphosphate and muriate of potash, are added in correct amounts to produce a standard 5-10-5 mixed fertilizer.

A Favorite Fertilizer

The Nelsons will not attempt to bag and merchandise the fertilizer. They will deliver it to a packing firm and the current plans are to sell it in small lots as the 5-10-5 blend has found favor with home gardners and flower lovers.

The feathers will have to be hauled away, but the Nelsons are working on an idea to chemically "brittilizing" them so they can be put through a mill. Feathers are almost 100 per cent protein, and have a very high nitrogen content.

They report strong demand for their new chicken, "The Broaster," a broad-breasted pullet dressing out at four to five pounds, and yet so tender that it can be broiled, roasted, baked or fried.

Only 1,600 were raised the first year. Last year 3,200 were sold at premium prices and the Nelsons plan to produce around 5,000 this season, which will run from Oct. 1 to April 15, 1958.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

No other feed comes as close to pastures in succulence, palatability and nutrition than properly made and properly stored silage. Livestock producers have long recognized this fact, not only in this generation or in this country, but as long as 200 years ago in the early Christian era. Roman writers of that period record that silage pits were being used.

Air And Water Kept Out

Two structural conditions must be met if the feed removed from a silo is to be of good feeding quality. The silo must be both air-tight and well drained. Many types of structures, permanent and temporary, will meet these conditions. Both the cylindrical upright and the rectangular trench silos used on the Station do this job well.

Trench Silos

Trench silos are out of the question in flat country and would serve only as a water-way or swimming pool. But, in rolling or hill counutry they are very practical for winter feed storage.

In selecting a site for a trench silo, look for a gently slope convenient to and near your feeding operation. A steep slope or hillside will demand too great an excavation, resulting in a silo too deep for practical and easy feeding. The depth of the excavation may be further reduced if the dirt is moved to the side walls for increased height above the normal grade or slope of the hill. Furthermore, this dirt along the sidewalls keeps surface drainage away from the trench.

Concrete Most Satisfactory

A trench with concrete floors and sidewalls is the best, but often finances or time or both dictate that a dirt trench be built. And dirt trenches time after time and year after year have been used successfully here on the Station. However, you must provide a solid floor of either concrete or a thick layer of gravel.

Shape The Walls

One of the requirements of a good trench is that it be as nearly air-tight as possible. Walls straight up and down are not air-tight. As silage settles and dries it tends to shrink away from the walls, leaving air space. To avoid this trouble slope the sidewalls so that the silage rather than shrinking away, wedges tightly. A slope of one foot for each four feet of silo depth is excellent. Thus, a trench eight feet deep would be four feet wider at the top than at the bottom.

Watch this space next week for more on building trench silos.

Time To Sweep, Spray Corn Crib

Now is the time to sweep out and spray the inside of that empty corn crib, says the Illinois Natural History Survey.

Many types of stored-grain insects can be found in old accumulations of grain both in and under the crib as well as in the cracks and crevices of the crib. These insects will not only reinfest the new corn, but may also spread to other grain storages. For control, clean up the old grain and other debris and apply a spray containing either 2.5 per cent methoxychlor or 0.5 per cent pyrethrin. Spray the crib surfaces to about run off and thoroughly spray beneath the crib.

Indian meal moths and other flour moths become numerous on the surface of stored wheat during late August. For control, apply 0.5 per cent pyrethrin spray to the surface. Be sure to treat the area of the bins above the grain surface as well. On shelled corn, mineral oil may also be used. Repeat treatments as needed.

HEREFORD BREEDERS WILL MEET TODAY

The Illinois Valley Hereford Association will hold its annual field day Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Walter Ernst farm eight miles east and three miles north of Carlinville. A basket dinner will be served at noon, standard time, with the association furnishing cold drinks and ice cream.

A judging contest will follow with Clarance Barklage of St. Charles, Mo., in charge. All 4-H boys and girls, F.F.A. members and the ladies are invited to compete. Prizes will be discounts on stock purchased at the Nov. 14 auction sale.

One reason for poor germination test on wheat seed is that it is dormant in warm weather and must be chilled in a refrigerator for five or six days to break the dormancy, says a University of Illinois crop specialist.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

CROP PROSPECTS MUCH BETTER

The nation's crop prospects improved considerably in July, and further gains were made in early August. The all-crop production index on August 1 stood at 103, only 3 points below the record of 106 reached last year.

The prospective production of total feed grains is about equal to last year's tonnage. Larger crops of oats, barley, and sorghum grains are offsetting the cut in corn output.

Corn Down. The corn crop came along very fast after a late start in many areas. As of August 1 the corn crop was estimated at 3,066 million bushels. This estimate is 2 per cent more than the July forecast, but 11 per cent below last year, and 2 per cent below the 10-year average. Crop and weather reports in the first half of August indicate further improvement in the crop. (Illinois, Indiana, and Missouri suffered the greatest cuts in corn.)

Oats Up. The oats crop is estimated at 1,361 million bushels, 18 per cent more than last year, and 3 per cent more than average. (Iowa and South Dakota have bumper crops.)

Barley Way Up. Barley production is forecast at 432 million bushels. This is 16 per cent more than last year, 48 per cent more than average, and would exceed the previous record crop of 429 million bushels produced in 1942. (California, North Dakota, and Montana are the big 3 in barley growing. Soil bank money boosted the acreage of barley.)

Sorghum Grain Way, Way Up. The production of sorghum grain is forecast at 418 million bushels. This output is a new record high, more than double last year's output, and more than 2½ times the 10-year average. (Texas and Kansas are the big 2 in sorghum grain production. Soil bank money paid for increases in the acreage of sorghum grain.)

Soybeans. The 1957 soybean crop is forecast at 428 million bushels. This would be the first crop n 4 years not to set a new record. It would be 6 percent less than the official preliminary estimate of the 1956 crops made last December, but that estimate is likely to be scaled down 3 or 4 percent when final figures are set next December. Thus if the 1957 crop improves a little it may well be nearly as large as the 1956 crop. There will be only a few million bushels of old beans on hand by October 1. Thus the total supply of beans for the 1957-58 marketing year may be about the same as in this year 1956-57.

A. ROSS MANNING BUYS HOLSTEIN BULL

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—A. Ross Manning, Roodhouse, Ill., has purchased Maple Ave Leader Burke 1275950, a registered Holstein bull rated as a Preferred Pedigree Sire by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, from Clark & Carr, Mukwonago, Wis.

The coveted preferred pedigree rating is a part of the association's selective registration program. Based on ancestral achievement, it guarantees that a bull's parents have met rigid standards of both type and production in official breed improvement registry programs.

Rye seeded in late August or early September will usually furnish some late fall pasture.

PLAN GREENE COUNTY FARM TOUR SEPT. 4

Farmers of the area are invited to attend the anfual Farm Bureau Farm Management tour in Greene county.

It will be held Wednesday, Sept. 4, at the Dale and Jack McConathy farm, beginning at 1:30 p.m. The farm is located two miles east of White Hall.

Arrangements for the tour are being made by Denver Funk, farm mangement service fieldman, and John Bicket, Greene county farm adviser.

Blackleg germs can live in the soil for years.

Soybean acreage planted alone in 1957 for all purposes is estimated by the USDA at 22.6 million acres, a new record high three percent above the 22 million acres planted in 1956.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Winter Short Course After The Holidays

URBANA—For the first time, the 7th annual Winter Short Course in Agriculture will be held after the winter holidays this school year.

Dean Louis B. Howard of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture announces the dates as February 3 through March 15, 1958, on the campus in Urbana.

Previous short courses in agriculture have been held in December and January. The change in dates has been made this year to avoid interrupting the schedule of classes with Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations.

Many Courses

About 25 different courses will again be offered in the fields of agricultural economics, agricultural engineering, agronomy, animal science, dairy science, forestry and animal hygiene, Dean Howard says.

Housing and meals will be available on the campus. All farm men and women over 18 years of age are welcome to enroll for up to five or six classes.

Illinois residents will pay $30 tuition fee plus $10.50 laboratory and supply fee, including hospital and medical service fee and Illini Union fee.

Detailed schedules will be printed and available about December 1 from your county farm adviser or your local vocational agriculture teacher. For full information, write to H. L. Sharp, short course supervisor, 104 Mumford Hall, Urbana, Illinois.

Announces Soil Bank's Wheat Acre Reserve

The Soil Bank's 1958 Acreage Reserve program, announced recently by Acting Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse, will be available first for winter wheat, Charles R. Gibson, chairman of the Morgan county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said Saturday.

Beginning Aug. 26, farmers who wish to take part in the Acreage Reserve program by reducing their winter wheat acreage below the established farm acreage allotment will be able to sign 1958 program agreements at the county ASC office. Officials in the office are busy working out last-minute details of procedure, prior to opening of the signup period.

"A number of changes have been made in provisions of the 1958 Acreage Reserve program, based on the past two years' experience," Chairman Gibson stated. "Probably the most important of these changes is the establishment of a total crop acreage figure for each farm—to be called the 'Soil Bank base'—as a means of reducing the farm's acreage of harvested crops.

"In the agreement, farmers will agree to limit their harvest of so-called 'Soil Bank base' crops to the 'permitted acreage' — in general, the number of acres in the Soil Bank base less the number of acres 'reserved.' This 'Soil Bank base' provision should help to check the shrift of production from Acreage Reserve crops to other crops, which contribute to overall surpluses."

Since a Soil Bank base must be established for each farm before an agreement may be signed, farmers are urged to bring along a record of their farm's crop history when they call at the county ASC office.

Farm Management Tour In Scott

According to Dale Hewitt, Scott county farm adviser, the Roland and Robert Reid farm located five miles northeast of Winchester, will be host to the Scott county Farm Bureau Farm Management annual tour on Wednesday, Aug. 28, at 1 p.m.

Denver Kuntz, Farm Bureau Farm Management fieldman, states that crops on this farm show excellent yields with a good crop rotation for the soil type. The fertility is in line with the crop sequence and the soil capabilities. Hogs and feeder cattle are raised on the farm with above average rate for hogs and cattle. There is pole type and convention crib type corn storage.

Farmers in Scott and surrounding counties are invited to attend and bring their friends.

LEE, DEKALB FARMS ON TOUR ROUTE

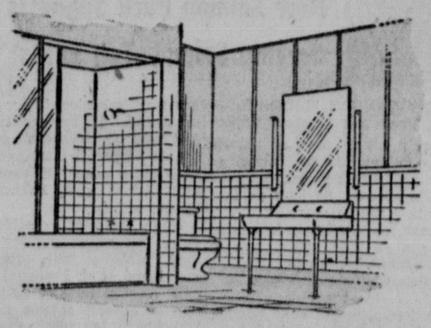

Some excellent livestock farms in Lee and DeKalb counties will be visited Thursday, Sept. 5, by members of Sangamon Valley Farm Bureau Farm Management Association. The next day the anpual meeting of the association will be held on the J. V. Stevenson farm northeast of Streator.

The Stevenson farm, highly mechanized, is a 240 acre cattle-hog farm. The operator handles 150 litters of hogs, 75 feeder calves and 2,000 laying hens with one hired man.

Each year insects, disease, fire and other destructive agents kill an amount of sawtimber equal to one-fourth the annual growth, says the USDA.

Nearly 350 4-H members from all but two Illinois counties took part in the 1957 State 4-H Leadership Conference.

Ferment In The Ballot Box

The business world is studded with market research outfits which help businessmen gauge probable customer response to their products and services. It might be a good idea if the politicians turned to this device in a big way.

They already do use existing research organizations to some extent, of course. Potential candidates often run off a little private survey before taking the plunge.

But if things keep on as they're going, they may need soundings on a big scale. The reason is plain. The complexion of their constituency is changing so rapidly with the changing face of America that it is hard to record it accurately from election to election.

Everybody knows that the country's farm population has been falling steadily for a long time. By the 1958 elections the farmers may well represent no more than one in every ten voters.

This means politicians will give less thought to the "farm vote," that legislators from predominantly farm states will speak with a smaller voice in Congress, that the balance of political strength will shift more than ever to the populous, highly urbanized states.

Within those latter states, the great migration to the suburbs continues, thus weakening further the old city organizations and buttressing the conservative vote common in the outlying sectors. "Winning the city" doesn't have the triumphant ring in political ears it used to have.

Big migrations proceed unchecked toward the Far West, and Southwest and the South, too. The net effect seems to be, up to now anyway, to make the East somewhat more Republican, the West more Democratic and the South for the first time a real two-party region in some parts.

With these churning shifts still in progress and evidently due to continue indefinitely, it is a rare politician who can keep really close tabs on the makeup of his constituency from year to year.

What is happening, naturally, makes election campaigns infinitely more intriguing to the onlooker, though painfully uncertain for the politician.

More important, without any evident loss of stability in government, it introduces a greater fluidity and flexibility into the American political system which serves well the cause of democracy. The age of political czardom, of easy entrenchment in "sure" districts, appears to be fading.

In their restless moving about, Americans have got their society in ferment, no doubt of it. Probably there aren't many politicians who wouldn't like to see this popular game of political musical chairs called off for a while.

Japan's Defeat In World War II Proved Great Victory For Japanese Women

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese men suffered two great defeats in World War II. In time they may forget they were beaten in combat, but they will never recover from their second loss.

"They lost face with their own women," says one of Japan's leading feminists. "Our country's defeat in World War II proved to be a great victory for Japanese women."

In the last 13 years the men of Japan have been forced to concede to women far-reaching rights and freedoms which promise eventually to reshape the country.

Some were written arbitrarily into Japan's new constitution and its legal code by U.S. occupation authorities. Some have been forced through a reluctant Diet (Parliament) by militant feminine legislators and voters. Others, more intangible but possibly more important, involve relationships within families and between the sexes.

For centuries a woman in Japan was legally an incompetent person. She could not vote, inherit property, obtain a divorce or have a voice in the rearing of her children. She had no social life and no interests outside the home and lived only to serve and to please her husband.

Now she has every legal right held by men. Special laws protect the health and welfare of working women and widows. Boys and girls have an equal right to higher education. Prostitution, legal for centuries, has been banned.

Some segments of the old way of life are dying slowly, particularly in the country. But it is dying indisputably. It's apparent even in the increasing number of Western dresses being worn. The old style kimono seems on its way out as everyday apparel.

"The women of Japan are far better off today than before the war and the next generation should make even greater strides forward," said Miss Sugi Shiraishi, women's editor of the English-language Japan Times and a prominent lecturer and writer.

"Today's teen-age girls don't even remember what it used to be like. They take these great new freedoms as their right, which they are.

"I think the greatest change in Japan, however, has been in family relationship."

Unbreakable marriage contracts no longer can be negotiated by heads of families although many marriages still are arranged; wives and minor children have legal rights recognized by courts; men no longer are undisputed monarchs in their homes.

Younger wives — for the most part those under 35—now go frequently with their husbands to private parties and to the neighborhood movie just as Americans do. Older women rarely go out with their husbands in the evening, but they do have a far less restricted social life built around women's clubs and matinees.

Many younger urban couples also have adopted the Western kiss—strictly taboo in prewar Japan.

Japan's double moral standard for men and women still exists. And wealthy men still visit geisha houses and restaurants which provide hostesse for jaded customers. But the younger middle class husband has no yen to spend two month's salary on a night's entertainment.

"Anyway, his wife wouldn't stand for it," a young housewife explained with a smile.

For the younger generation the most dramatic change perhaps has been in the relationship between boys and girls before marriage.

While Japanese boys and girls of middle class families generally do not "date" in the American sense, there now are ample opportunities for them to find friends in colleges, clubs, sports organizations and at private parties.

Butter curlers are available in many department stores. To use, lightly draw the gadget across a quarter-pound print of butter, then chill the butter curls before serving.

Cream butter with grated orange rind and a little confectioners' sugar. Serve over hot dessert pancakes—the kind that are paper thin.

Reach High!—Dancing Stenos—Stop the Presses—Delicacies—Necktie—Climbs Down—Soft Soaping

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— During a recess in the hall outside the Senate hearing room where a parade of racketeers and union officials was being grilled, a group of youngsters stared at one of the witnesses with great curiosity. They saw a man fumbling in his inside coat pocket and one of the kids walked up to him and asked, "Whatcha looking for, mister?"

"Why, my rod, of course," the man replied. "I'm going to shoot the place up."

The kids raced out of the building in terror.

What the man was fumbling for, of course, was his typewritten Fifth Amendment statement.

Other Day the government boss of a stenographers' pool noticed that the afternoon production of his gals was dropping off sharply. If took him a week to solve the problem. His girls were taking their lunch hour to go to a nearby dance studio for lessons in the cha-cha-cha. They came back to work all tired out.

He held a conference with them and they agreed to shift the lessons to the evening.

The cha-cha-cha has become the favorite dance among the embassy set, too. Maj. Kyong Eup Kim, Korean assistant millitary attache, is the recognized cha-cha-cha champ, by the way.

In Case You Wondered why the Senate rushed through the confirmation of new Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy, here's the reason:

The publisher of "The Social List of Washington, D. C.," Mrs. Carolyn Hagner Shaw, was about to go to press with her new edition. So the Senate Armed Services Committee courteously made his appointment legal so that Mrs. Shaw could include McElroy's name in the book.

The Korean Embassy threw a big reception celebrating its independence day. The usually delicious turkeys, hams, cold beef tenderloin slices, shrimp, caviar, iced melon balls, chicken, potato salad, stuffed eggs, cold lamb and iced cream were served.

But when the last invited guest left, members of the staff were treated to a special dinner featuring kimchi, the famous Korean dish.

Kimchi is made out of cabbage which has been allowed to ferment for a couple of weeks, garlic and ground beef.

Syud Ahmed, Pakistan press attache, showed up at a cocktail party recently sporting an outrageously gaudy necktie.

He apologized by saying a classy downtown men's clothing store was using his expensive collection of dark silk ties as a display.

This is what really happened:

Friends who gave him the flashy piece of neckwear for his birthday had hidden his other ties so he would have to wear it.

For Weeks Sen. Harry Byrd (D-Va.) has been trying to get Congress to recess so he could go on a month's mountain-climbing expedition in the Rockies.

Now he says he's cutting the trip short because he's got to get back home to take care of his apple orchard. Fellow senators are kidding that he got cold feet when he read about the three mountain climbers who were recently lost in the Alps.

Report On The Nation's ever-alert Pentagon defenders:

The day after the President announced that Neil McElroy would be the new secretary of defense, the soap in the washroom off the secretary's office was switched from Lux, a product of Lever Bros., to Camay, a product of Proctor & Gamble.

Sleep On, Lady, If Husband Wants That Morning Quiet

Before wives in the habit of letting husbands get themselves off in the morning change their routines, they'd better check with their husbands.

Apparently there are some men who hanker for that hour alone they get every morning while their wives sleep.

Here's what one of my men readers has to say on the subject:

"This letter is in regard to your recent column on the subject of the wife who doesn't get up to prepare her husband's breakfast and does not send him off to work with a kiss.

"Most of the husbands I know, myself included, prepare their own breakfasts or eat in town and go to work without the wife getting up. WE LIKE IT THAT WAY.

"This may hurt feminine feelings, but we husbands enjoy periods of silence. We aren't would-be hermits, but the waking hours of the day are the only hours in which a fellow doesn't have to do anything except take care of the routine of starting a new day and enjoy the silence.

PEACE AND QUIET

"I have done some of my best thinking while preparing and eating breakfast in silence. I read the papers and a couple chapters of some book I'm going through.

"Maybe we silence-lovers are a tiny minority, and you don't care about a tiny minority. But please, lady, don't take our cherished early-morning peace and quiet away from us."

But I do care about a tiny minority that feels so strongly. That's why I'm amending that column encouraging wives to start their husbands off with a good breakfast, cheerful smile, and a goodby kiss to read:

"Unless you happen to be married to a man who treasures the quiet hours of the morning when he is the only creature stirring in the house."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Hoffa—no matter what else happens to him—is not going to look like an unselfish, modest-living hero of American labor after the Senate Rackets Committee investigation.

His attitude toward the world seems to be: "They don't come too big for me." He sounded tough, cocky and forthright when—not knowing what he'd be hit with—he announced he'd answer the committee's questions.

It remains to be seen whether he also showed good sense. The chunky, 44-year-old Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union, is tough all right. But he's walking over ground full of bobby-traps.

This committee has done a digging job on him: into his financial dealings, his associations, his plans and ambitions. It even has wiretapped recordings of his telephone conversations. And he took an oath to tell the truth.

Hoffa is being asked a lot of questions covering years. He has a remarkable memory — sometimes. But any witness under oath who makes a misstep—by stating as fact what turns out not to be—can wind up charged with perjury.

He faces no such problem if he says he can't remember matters about which he's asked. After three days of watching Hoffa have memory trouble, Sen. Ives (R-NY) commented on Hoffa's "convenient forgettery."

Yet if Hoffa had done what Dave Beck did—duck questions by taking the Fifth Amendment—he might have ruined 25 years of climbing up the union ladder to power just when the top prize is in sight.

Hoffa hopes to succeed the discredited Beck as president of the 1½-million-member Teamsters Union, biggest in the nation, at its September convention. Hoffa was bouncy Tuesday when he first faced the committee. After three days he looked strained.

The picture the committee is trying to paint of Hoffa is not pretty: a tieup with hoodlums and ex-convicts, led by Johnny Dio, and a drive to extend his power from the Midwest to control of New York Teamsters.

Beck used the Fifth Amendment to avoid telling this same committee about his admitted use of hundreds of thousands of dollars in union funds. He wrecked himself as a union leader. Since then he has come under charges of larceny and income tax evasion.

But the committee brought out that Hoffa had borrowed $120,000—of which he says he still owes $70,000—from various sources, including subordinates among the Teamsters, and $21,000 from his own local in Detroit.

In 1956, Hoffa said, he borrowed $25,000 from Harold L. Mark, a Detroit real estate dealer, who in turn had borrowed it from a Detroit Teamster local run by a close pal of Hoffa.

Most remarkable of all in Hoffa's financial dealings was his admission that until this year he never had a bank account but kept his money in a "safe place."

Chief counsel Robert F. Kennedy said some of those from whom Hoffa borrowed money — without interest or security—were men with long police records and some employers who dealt with Hoffa's union.

And when Kennedy asked if the members of his own local had been fully advised of his borrowing from it, Hoffa said he didn't know whether he had reported the transactions.

Retired Man Plans For New Business

BY BEULAH STOWE

"I'm an armchair businessman," says P. C., who retired last January. "My business investment so far is $1.25 a year, and the possible returns from this investment are unlimited."

For his $1.25 Mr. P. C. subscribed to the Business Service Checklist, a weekly four-page leaflet published by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington, D.C.

"This has led a little man into large dreams," he explains. "I want to start a business of my own, but have not yet decided what sort of business. My available capital, about $6,700, is also our life savings. I can't afford a mistake. I can afford to study."

The Checklist is a list, not a magazine, giving titles of material published by the U.S. Department of Commerce and other agencies. Some of the material listed will be mailed free on request, and other information can be obtained at a slight cost.

From his armchair Mr. P. C. keeps up with the trends of business. He may send in for a report on the copper industry, a survey on the salad dressing and mayonnaise business, an address by the Secretary of Commerce, or reports on patents, weather, foreign trade, road building or international trade fairs.

Especially applicable to Mr. C.'s interests are the publications of the Small Business Administration, such as "Buying a Small Going Concern," "Pricing and Profits in Small Stores," or "Control of Expendable Tools." (These three mentioned are four-page leaflets distributed free by the Office of Information, Small Business Administration, Washington 25, D.C.)

Mr. C. went to work when he was 17 years old. For 48 years he worked for a boss—in the oil fields in Texas and Louisiana. He wants only one more boss for the rest of his life, he says, and he wants to work for only one more company: he'll be the boss and he'll own the company. Or else he won't work at all.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

A Farmer-Prophet Speaks

BY WILLIAM H. GILROY, D.D.

The recent evangelistic campaign of Billy Graham in New York has had aspects mostly unfamiliar in religious history in the immensity, thoroughness, preparation of its organization, and financial backing.

I suppose the Crusades represented as great an organization and expenditures, as wings and zealots enlisted and marched great armies for the conquest of the Holy Land. Let us hope that Dr. Graham's crusade has greater success and a more permanent issue.

Great and highly organized movements of religion—that of John Wesley, for instance—have not been entirely lacking, or unsuccessful.

But one aspect of Dr. Graham's mission is typical of what has happened again and again as a religious leader, or prophet has come from the hinterland or hermitage to the city to rebuke its sins and call people to repentance. One thinks of such figures as John the Baptist and Savonarola. I think that Dr. Graham is to be commended by the fact that the dominant aspect of his campaign was invitation rather than denunciation. If he rebuked the characteristic evils of a great city, it was more by contrast with Christian ideals than by sensational denunciations, such as marked the campaigns of Billy Sunday.

However, I did not start out to write about Dr. Graham, but about a farmer-prophet of ancient time, who has left his mark upon the world. It is Amos, the herdsman. I have called him a farmer-prophet, for a herdsman is a farmer. I wanted to emphasize the fact that he came with unsullied conscience and clear vision to the city to set the standards of his simple life and integrity against the wrongs and abuses of men and women in complex relationships.

Without being unduly pessimistic, or failing to recognize much that is best in the city today, I think it must be said that an Amos of today would find much in vice, crime, and the ruthless exploitation of some of the others that the ancient Amos found as he came from the fields to Jerusalem and to Damascus.

What did Amos find wrong? He found violence and cruelty, social wrongs, the righteous sold for silver and the poor for a pair of shoes (Amos 2:6).

There was disregard of the law and commandments, corruption in personal relations. Religion itself was perverted in the profanation of the altars and the performance of religious rites that had no spiritual reality.

His outburst against this formalism is intense. "I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies" (Amos 5:21). Can one say that the religion of our time is free from formalism?

But the message was not all denunciatory. Amos urged the people to "seek good and not evil" (Amos 5:14), and his prophecy ends upon a high note of hope and reconstruction.

CLOUDCROFT, N. M., (AP)—A marauding bear has discovered that a little 84-year-old woman means business. When the animal came to the home of Mrs. Cyril Colton to renew raids on the canned goods, Mrs. Colton was ready. The bear limped off to the woods with a load of shotgun pellets in its hide.

"If that danged gun hadn't been so hard to handle," the little old lady said, "I'd-a had me a bear-skin rug."

New Salmon Pack Suggests Serving Salmon Tug Boats

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

There's a new pack of salmon from Puget Sound, Columbia River and Alaskan areas on your grocer's shelves. So let's go fishing with a market cart.

Salmon, as you know, is a complete protein food and is rich in many essential vitamins.

Canned Salmon Plank
(Serves 4)

Two one-half pound cans salmon, drained, 3 cups hot mashed potatoes, 2 pounds fresh or 1 10-ounce package frozen peas, butter, lemon wedges.

Remove one end from each can of salmon. Place on baking sheet and heat in 350 degrees, F. oven for 15 minutes, or until salmon is heated through. Meanwhile, cook and mash potatoes, or use one box packaged, quick-mashed potatoes. Keep hot until ready to use. Cook peas, reducing time so that peas are not completely tender. Drain hot salmon, reserving liquid. Turn out in center of greased plank or ovenproof platter. Spoon mashed potatoes around edge of plank, encircling canned salmon. Place plank under broiler, about 4 inches from heat source and broil until lightly browned, basting salmon with its liquid, if desired. Broil plank for about 15 minutes, or until lightly browned and hot. Garnish plank with lemon wedges.

Salmon Tug Boats (6-8 servings)

One pound can salmon, 1 teaspoon grated onion, ½ cup chopped cucumber, 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ cup mayonnaise, 1 loaf crusty French bread, butter, lettuce.

Flake salmon; combine with onion, cucumber, egg and seasonings. Moisten with mayonnaise and blend. Cut French bread in half lengthwise and butter both halves. Spread salmon filling on lower half; top with crisp lettuce leaves and press bread together as for sandwich. Cut into 6 to 8 servings.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Canned salmon plank, lemon wedges, crisp rolls, butter or margarine, radish, scallion, cucumber and lettuce salad, French dressing, sliced peaches, ready-mix golden cake, coffee, tea, milk.

Shot Heard Around The World —

GI, Girard Goes On Trial Aug. 26 For Death Of Japanese Woman

MAEBASHI, Japan (AP)—In the split second it takes to squeeze the trigger of an M-1 rifle, an obscure American GI, William S. Girard, put himself and U. S. foreign policy on the spot.

The 21-year-old Illinois soldier steps before a trio of black-robed Japanese judges in Maebashi Monday to answer charges in the death of a Japanese woman on an Army rifle range Jan. 30.

But the uproar that his shooting caused has already put the United States on trial before the world and has forced the critical eye of Congress on a sore spot of U.S. foreign policy.

How did the shooting of a poor, unknown farm woman by the son of an itinerant Illinois family boil into such a diplomatic crisis?

The answers are still unfolding.

From the time Mrs. Naka Sakai, 46, fell bleeding with an empty rifle shell casing in her back, Girard has been on the sidelines watching a turbulent debate by his critics and protectors in America and Japan.

These elements seem clear on the eve of the trial:

The day of the shooting, Girard was ordered to guard a machine gun and a pile of field jackets lying on the snow-covered Somagahara firing range, 76 miles north of Tokyo.

Specialist 3.C. Girard admits he stuffed an empty shell casing into his rifle grenade launcher and fired it with a blank cartridge to warn away Japanese villagers who trespass on firing ranges to pick up brass shell casings for a living.

The arguments begin over just how much latitude Girard had in guarding the property:

Was he specifically told to warn the Japanese away?

Did he lure them into rifle range as the indictment charges?

Girard hopes for acquittal or a suspended sentence on grounds that the killing of Mrs. Sakai was an accident while he was on duty. He is charged formally with "inflicting bodily injury causing death."

The three judges, sitting in the small, wood-paneled courtroom, will have to decide all these questions.

But whatever they decide the rumblings of the trial will likely be heard for months to come.

It has stirred up the strongest drive in Congress so far against foreign trials for American Servicemen. Agreements with dozens of countries where U.S. troops are stationed are at stake.

There was mixed congressional reaction last month when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a Japanese trial would not violate Girard's constitutional rights.

President Eisenhower has warned that America's whole security system could be threatened by denying friendly countries the right to subject U.S. troops stationed on their soil to their laws.

Girard's wife, onetime Japanese bar waitress Haru (Candy) Sueyama, risked the disfavor of her countrymen to marry Girard last month when the controversy was at fever pitch.

In the days since he was ordered to stand trial, Girard has spent long hours conferring with his Army legal adviser, Maj. Stanley Levin of Hollywood, Calif. and now the two seem almost like father and son. They share cigarettes and answer the telephone for each other.

Tight-lipped from the start, Girard has learned to jest with the many persistent newsmen who have haunted the camp in recent weeks. His most frequent reply to questions is: "I ain't got no comment."

Some of his fellow soldiers think he has become cocky under the glare of public attention.

Back home, the American public was shocked when the announcement came that Girard would be tried in a Japanese court. It seemed at first to be an open and shut case of a soldier on guard duty who—if tried at all—should be judged by his own army.

The Japanese public was equally shocked. Their newspapers said that Girard had deliberately lured Mrs. Sakai to her death, something Girard still denies. But this enticement factor has become the cornerstone for the demand that Girard be tried in a Japanese court. (Japan has made such a demand in only 3 per cent of the 14,000 cases of servicemen law violations since 1952).

In the Japanese Parliament, opposition Socialists brought the case up daily. Conservative Foreign Minister Nobusuke Kishi—now prime minister—said, "Japan cannot stomach this."

Eight days after the shooting, the Army confidentially notified Japan it would take jurisdiction and possibly court-martial Girard, since he was "performing duties as a guard."

The following day, American Charge d'Affaires Outerbridge Horsey visited Kishi with a letter expressing profound regret at the death.

Japan claimed jurisdiction a day later with a note saying prosecutors had proof that Girard was not 'performing official duty."

These were the words used in the U.S.-Japan agreement for determining which nation tries a lawbreaker.

From Feb. 16 to May 16, the two countries wrangled in the joint committee, the United States claiming Girard acted in line of duty and should be court-martialed, Japan saying he, "materially deviating from the performance of duty, wilfully threw expended cartridge cases toward Naka Sakai. . . ."

The United States yielded to Japan the right of trial, on May 16 without using its last resort of full diplomatic negotiations on the Girard case.

The Far East Command announced the decision with a vague two-sentence release that gave no reason.

Hardly had the unexplained decision hit the wires when an uproar started in America.

Finally, on June 4, Wilson and Secretary of State Dulles jointly reaffirmed the decision for the Japanese trial. Their announcement disclosed that the firing of empty shells through a grenade launcher was an unauthorized act.

Girard held his first press conference, declared he was confident of a fair trial and named a Japanese defense lawyer, Itsuro Hayashi, 64, a former bar association president long identified with rightist causes.

Then, after overnight transpacific telephone calls with his brother Louis, Girard did an abrupt about-face. He stopped preparations for a Japanese trial and put his affairs in the hands of a battery of American lawyers who staged an intense, six-week federal court fight to force the Army to withhold Girard from Japanese jurisdiction.

Louis told William he had become "a national hero," but would be a "national disgrace" if he let Japan try him without a fight.

New York lawyer Earl Carroll won the first round of his fight to withhold Girard from Japanese courts. The U.S. Federal District Court in Washington ruled that the soldier should not be tried by Japan since he was on duty at the time of the shooting. The government appealed to the Supreme Court and won.

Japanese praised the high court decision as demonstrating American fair play.

Before the Supreme Court, the U.S. government for the first time presented testimony that Mrs. Sakai was enticed to her death.

A secret Army affidavit, made public by the court, disclosed statements by another soldier, Specialist 3.C. Victor Nickel of Inkster, Mich., that he had scattered shells toward Mrs. Sakai on Girard's suggestion.

Once the enticement evidence was publicized in America, the uproar over turning Girard over to Japan cooled noticeably.

L. S. Clemens, city editor of Girard's hometown newspaper, the Ottawa (Ill.) Republican-Times, said the ratio of letters favoring Girard's release shifted from 10-1 to 50-50. A special Girard defense account in the local bank leveled off at $100 at contributions stopped.

Girard goes to trial amid a widespread feeling by his fellow GIs and officers here that if convicted he may get a lighter sentence than in a court-martial. The maximum sentence on the Japanese charge is 2 to 15 years, but Japanese courts frequently suspend all or part of a sentence.

HEAD-AND-TAIL-LIGHT
By Ray Broekel

This rather dainty aquarium fish was first found in Northern South America in British Guiana and the Amazon basin. Its scientific name is Hemigrammus ocellifer.

An average length of 1¾ inches for the adult is typical.

The common name, Head-and-tail-light, stems from the fact that a glowing spot on the base of the tail fin and another on the eye make it seem as if this fish had lights on it. The rest of the body is rather a plain silver in color.

Head-and-tail-light fishes are active-peaceful fishes. They mind their own business in the aquairum as they move constantly about.

They are egg layers, with the female being somewhat rounder in the body than the male. Another feature can be used to distinguish the sex also. On the anal fin, the one between the tail and the front fins on the bottom, the male will have a small white spot. This is not present on the females.

A Row Of Pretties

On a late summer morning, three little folks played by the farm kitchen window. Though their mother was busy indoors, she could talk to them by leaning over the ledge for there were no screens in those years.

Suddenly, she called "Look, look, the chickens are in the garden." They all hurried through the garden gate waving their arms and calling "Shoo: Shoo!" but the sharpeyed hens dodged and fluttered in backward circles.

They had discovered a feast, juicy red love apples that grew in a decorative border at the garden edge. Mother had planted and cared for them knowing that every one who drove down their road would delight in those bright fruits set in the thick green leaved plants.

Finally, the run-away chickens were chased outside the gate, and the hole they had scratched beneath an old board was filled. But the row of fruited plants, now with broken stems and loosened roots, could not be mended.

All the bright fruit had been picked open and lay in fragments of skin on the ground. It was too late in the season for the few little green balls left on the stems to grow red again. Worst yet, Mother said "The chickens will be poisoned and we shall lose our flock."

Hens Not Sick!

The next morning they all went to the chicken house and looked along the roosts, there was not a sick or dead hen anywhere! They scratched and pecked along the garden fence all day for another taste of love apples, but not one hen could get inside.

The children watched the flock anxiously for three days, still each chicken seemed only sturdier and hungrier while the row of love apples, which their mother called "My pretties" withered away.

This all happened more than ninety years ago when pioneer families believed that these fruits were poisonous. We call them tomatoes now, and of course we know they are not only not poisonous, but are very good for us!

An American Every One Should Know

Aaron Copeland

By Walter B. Hendrickson

Everybody knows that Bach, Beethoven and Brahms were great composers of music. They all lived a hundred or more years ago, and people have listened to their music for so long that they think of it as "classical music."

Yet, when they first wrote their music, people thought it was strange and different, because it was not the kind they were used to. Today, when we hear what is called modern music, it sounds so different from the classics that many people say they do not like it because it is too harsh and brassy, it is more discord than harmony, and it doesn't have any tune.

Yet, today we have many composers who are writing very good, but different music, and slowly we are learning to listen to and like their music.

The man who is largely responsible for this new appreciation of American music is Aaron Copeland, born in the city of Brooklyn in 1900. He became interested in music at the late age of thirteen.

That is, thirteen is a late age for a great musician to start, when we remember that Mozart began to play the piano and to write music when he was five years old. But Aaron Copeland was a good pupil and learned rapidly.

After studying in America, he went to France, where there was a group of composers who were writing a new kind of music. (One of them was Stravinsky. Remember him? He wrote the "Rite of Spring" which Walt Disney included in his movie "Fantasia."

Real American Music

When Copeland came back home, he was convinced that if we were to have American music, it should be written out of our history and our folk music, just as the great music of Brahms or Beethoven had been done.

And so he wrote "Music for the Theater" using jazz, and in "Billy the Kid," he used cowboy music. In "Applichian Spring," he used the simple melodies of the Shakers.

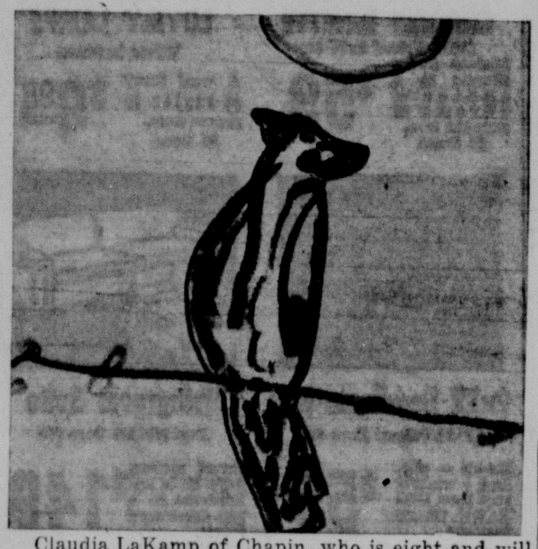

These were all "modern music," with new and different harmonies, and new and different combinations of instruments. They didn't sound at all like Beethoven and Brahms, but people liked the music, because it reminded them of the music they heard around them every day.

Copeland has written a great deal of music for movies, for high school chorus groups, and much of it is on records, so that we can listen to it in our homes.

He has also written books about music. One of the best is "What to listen for in Music," and you can get it at the Public Library.

Many other American musicians have been encouraged to write new music by Copeland's success, and he is himself always ready to help young composers. It is therefore largely due to him that we have so much fine American music to listen to today.

Cardinal Suns Itself

Claudia LaKamp of Chapin, who is eight and will be in the second grade this fall, drew this fine picture of a Cardinal (red-bird) sitting on a leafy branch in the sunlight. He looks as if he is just ready to sing his "Pretty bird" song.

Claudia may come in anytime now for her Junior Journalist pencil and Press Card.

Part II: Jim Wants Excitement

"Might as well be home polishing the car," grumbled Jim Davidson, seaman first-class of the United States Coast Guard, as he rubbed the plexiglass windows of the helicopter with unnecessary vigor.

It had been a great thrill for Jim when he had been assigned as third man on the 'copter's crew, right out of helicopter school. He had been at this Lake Superior station three weeks now, and there had been nothing but sunny skies and calm lake until today.

Now the wind was freshening, and the whitecaps were growing larger and whiter by the minute.

Jim wanted excitement—man overboard, a shipwreck, stricken sailor to be taken off an ore boat—and this looked like the day for it.

Of course, he didn't really wish any person such bad luck, but he did want a chance to use this helicopter, the newest addition to the Coast Guard's lifesaving equipment. The Hummer, as the crew had christened it, could, like the humming bird for which it was named, fly backward as well as forward, climb straight up, and even hover in the air.

Jim polished away as he went over in his mind the procedures in which he had drilled day after day in practice flights.

Alarm Bell!

"Clang-g-g, Clang-g-g!" It was the alarm bell in the station house sounding off.

"Hurrah. Action at last!" thought Jim as he raced to his station in the ready room.

But even as he ran, he heard the command, "Man the surf boat!" and he knew that the Hummer would not be used this time. From Lieutenant Sanders, who commanded the helicopter, he received permission to go into the lookout tower to see what was happening.

"Just don't get too far away," the Lieutenant had said.

"Maybe it's something too big for the surf boat crew to handle alone. Maybe they'll need the Hummer after all," he thought hopefully, as he climbed the ladder to the glassed in tower.

FIRST WHITE CHILD

The first white child born in North America was Virginia Dare. She was born Aug. 18, 1587, on Roanoke Island North Carolina. This was 33 years before the Pilgrims came.

This was 7 days after Sir Walter Raleigh's first expedition had come to the new world. His first expedition, that had come in 1584, had disappeared.

WORLD-WIDE TELEVISION
By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Probably, the type space station which will affect life in Jacksonville will be the television relay space stations.

Three television relay stations would be located in a 24-hour orbit, and each station would be an equal distance from the others. Since these stations would revolve around the earth at the same rate that the earth turns, they would stay fixed in the same point in the sky.

All television programs would be beamed directly to these stations and they would, in turn, beam these programs back to all parts of the earth. Tall antennas, such as we see now in Jacksonville, would no longer be needed.

This can be done because television waves travel in a straight line so they can go any distance into space. (On earth they can go only a limited distance because of the earth's curve.)

These stations would also relay messages between the other space station, and in time they would make possible a world-wide radio-telephone.

Next, We'll tell you about Space Boats.

Chapter 2: Friendly Martians

Synopsis—The earthmen have established their camp in the village of the Martian natives.

Dr. Wharton managed to find out from Wopang that there were a number of tribes similar to his roaming the face of Mars. All of them were peaceful since there were really no problems of space and food.

Martians were a simple people who were provided with vegetable food from the ground and were able to get an ample meat supply from the thundering herds of Kalcoths that roamed Mars.

Kalcoths were immense creatures that stood 20 to 30 feet high. They had an appearance similar to the wooly mammoths of early earth history. One kill would provide enough meat for the entire village for almost a month.

Life in the village was simple. The men would spend their day either at hunting, exploring or having Golla races. The women would tend to simple household duties, taking care of the small gardens, and taking care of the children.

Simple writing and reading was carried on by the Martians. Their alphabet consisted of ten letters and 15 combination letter sounds. Only simple words that expressed definite ideas were used.

They did not have a number of words that would express almost the same idea. For example, a Martian was either happy or sad. They had no words to express such English words as joyful, morose, pretty good, fairly well, etc.

No Books

Because of this sort of language the Martians had no literature to speak of—language was used to express vocally and as simply as possible.

Roy Parker and Jack Baines discussed the life of the Martians many times.

"They don't have much of anything, Roy," said Jack, "yet they are as happy as anyone on earth could ever be."

"Yes, they lead a simple, satisfying life—and I'm afraid to think of what will happen to them once some of our Earth people decide they need to be better educated and well-informed. I can see it now—imagine how horrified our Adjusti-life department will be when they find out that the Martians just eat, sleep, live and enjoy life.

"I can hear Mrs. Snade now, 'Why my dear, Roy—these natives, what do they do to enrich their minds?'—but then, I guess, that is one of man's shortcomings—he is always trying to make things better, when lots of times things would be a lot better off by being left alone."

"Don't you sound like a grand old philosopher," laughed Jack. "Pretty soon you'll be writing a book."

Time For Exploring

The two were interrupted by Joe Higgins who said that the group was about set for exploring one of the canell.

"All right, Joe," replied Jack, "I'll be there in a second, providing I can get my philosopher friend here to go along."

Jack ducked as Roy swung playfully at him.

Four Gollas had been saddled for the trip. Wopang and another Martian, Beloc by name, Dr. Wharton, Joe Higgins, Max Bottomley, Roy and Jack were the ones going. Supply packs were strapped to the backs of the Gollas who waited patiently to start.

Wopang, on the lead Golla, gave command and off they went. The Gollas covered ground quickly as their padded feet lightly skimmed over the sand. Their destination was one of the canali that had near it, as far as Dr. Wharton could make out, ruins of some sort. The Martian natives didn't know and didn't care about them, so the earthmen had decided to do some investigating on their own part.

Nine Big Indians

Part 3: Hungry Indians

These hot, hungry and tired Indians knew no retraint. They became more demanding; louder, they made big grunts, deep gutterals! "Bread; Bread!" they meant 'now!'

"Bread? That's what we have least of "I thought. The younger children were minding mother (the ladder to upstairs was on the south wall.)

"Lisbeth," said mother to me, "Bring all the bread."

"Zeke! Fill the cedar bucket with cool water from the well."

Soon Zeke was back with bucket and a goard to drink out of, just as I brought in four long fat loaves of bread in my arms.

Two Indians grabbed bread and water then, to their grunts, matching their steps, they filed through the door, nine big Indians, onto the breeze-way.

At a nod from mother, we children climbed up to bed. Zeke stayed with mother and the baby.

Peers At Indians

The children slept at once. But I had a favorite knot-hole. I could see down on the unroofed porch. Indians! Nine Indians squatted along the wall of the little house. In a line as straight as the logs, they hunkered on their haunches.

Every Indian then began sharpening his big long knife on hide. I could hear the whetting. Why so sharp just to cut bread?

Then the head Indian, the big weathered number one Brave, he himself cut every loaf into nine big hunks. Why were all the knives made so sharp?

The hunks were sent down the line. Each Indian had four hunks. Each Indian ate every crumb.

The goard was filled and passed. Each drank all of it, so hot and thirsty they were.

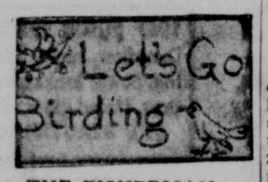

Indians Sleep

Then the Indians stretched out there in a row, having each placed his long hunting knife beside him, and went to sleep.

I slipped down stairs to tell mother. She was in the big four-poster wide awake too. The baby was sleeping against her. Zeke was asleep on the bench.

I just smiled at mother in the dimness, and slipped back up the ladder, not to sleep. I hurried to my knot-hole.

THE FISHERMAN
By Emma Mae Leonhard

There is one bird that seems to be both the most hated, or at least slaughtered, and the most admired. This bird is the hawk.

Why should the same species bring two such extreme reactions from people? Some farmers, not nearly all of them, may think that all hawks are the so called "chicken hawks" and so shoot them in order to protect their own property; and people do have the right to protect their own property.

There are only two common ones in our territory—the Sharp-shinned and the Cooper's—that are harmful and destructive.

However, the beautiful larger hawk—the common Red-tailed Hawk, often called the Hen Hawk for example—are definitely an asset. They may rarely catch poultry, even then mostly the old, diseased, or disabled fowls; but they live mostly upon destructive rodents, like mice and rats, or upon rabbits, squirrels, moles, and even larger insects. Some people thoughtlessly or just for the sport shoot any large hawk and sometimes stretch out the wide-winged birds upon wire fences for display. We are happy to notice that this picture isn't seen as much as it used to be.

On the other hand, young bird watchers are often first of all attracted to the hawks and are admirers of those large graceful birds that soar and circle in vast, sweeping curves high in the sky. When the Red-tailed Hawk tips or banks as it circles so that its fanlike tail catches the light at just he righ angle, it easily gives itself away by its red tail.

Fish Hawk

However beautiful the Red-tailed Hawk may be, perhaps the most beautiful hawk that can be seen in our area, is the Osprey, also called the Fish Hawk. Bird watchers see at least one, occasionally two, circling around or hovering over the lakes around Jacksonville during the migration season. This hawk can be easily identified. It is the only large bird of prey which is blackish above and clear white below. It is eaglelike and may suggest to you the Bald Eagle, but its mostly white head has a broad black patch through its cheeks.

It is worth the time of anyone interest in birds to watch this beautiful hawk hover on beating wings above Lake Jacksonville or Mauvaisterre, then plunge feet first for a fish, which it rarely misses. Since the bird cannot dive into the water, it catches only the fish found in shallow water or near the surface; but it is a sure fisherman.

From the sky, a hundred or so feet above, it can easily spot the neutral-colored fish, so keen is its eye-sight. Then with its powerful wings and tail it plunges down upon the fish and traps it in its long, sharp, well-curved, and powerful talons or feet.

Since the Osprey lives only upon fish and is such an expert catcher of fish, we can understand its second name, the Fish Hawk. And we can understand why bird watchers, particularly beginners, are attracted to hawks. Hawks are so strong, swift, and graceful—like their admirers—and our "Fisherman" is the prize.

Taken From A Diary Of 120 Years Ago

By MABEL HALL GOLTRA

We opened the box that Mary's clothes were in and found them to be quite wet and took in as many as we could conveniently dry by the fire, and Mary sat up until 3 o'clock in the morning ironing them.

The rest we decided to dry the next day on the bushes. We paid 25 cents for the room which we thought was cheap enough.

Oct. 27th. We rose at 6 o'clock. It was clear and cold and we had a hard frost with snow on the ground. We packed up and traveled nine miles and stopped to take breakfast in an old house in the woods, very pleasant.

We stayed there six hours and dried more clothes then went on to Jacksonton, one-half mile and stopped for the night by the side of a maple tree that had blown down which made good fire wood. We had traveled 17 miles that day.

Oct. 28. We rose at 6 o'clock. It was clear and we traveled 15 and one-half miles and stopped by the side of an old log house to take breakfast and then went on 16 miles to Columbus, Ohio, the most pleasant place we had seen since we left New Jersey.

We travelled on but almost upset when we tried to leave the road as it was very dark. It was Saturday night and we had travelled three weeks.

Oct. 29th. Sunday. We were up at 6 in the morning. It was clear and cold and we went on nine miles to Jefferson, then one-half mile west and turned off on the National Road to go to Uncle John Cory's. It was 46 miles to our Uncle John's.

We travelled one-half mile and stopped for breakfast at 11 o'clock. We had very bad roads and broke one of the traces and the whippletree. Again it happened on Sunday. We traveled 26 miles and stopped for the night within two miles of Mechanicsburgh.

Oct. 30th. Rose at 4:30 o'clock. After breakfast we started for Uncle John's hoping to get there that night. Traveled on 11 miles to Urbana, then one mile west and stopped to eat and feed the horses.

The two light wagons went on ahead and left Bryan and Sutton to follow hoping that the light wagons would get there before night.

Meet Uncle John

We had gone about five miles when they met Uncle John going to Urbana with a load of plank. No one knew him until he came to Bryan, and he told Bryan that he could not get there with two horses to the large wagon, but told the others that if they would wait till morning when he went to Urbana and back, he would put part of his team, too, and help them through.

So Bryan took one of the horses out of the team and came on to let us know the difficulty and Mr. Harris went back with the horse and Bryan came on with us in the light wagons.

At sunset we were five miles from Uncle John's in the woods and mud sometimes hub deep and holes a great deal worse, so bad that one had to get out and pick the way knee deep in mud. We thought then if we could get to a small town called Trenton two miles from Uncle John's, we would stop for the night, so we tuckered on for a mile or two in the mud.

At last we came to a house where we asked how far it was to Trenton. We were told it was one-fourth mile, and one mud hole that reached all the way, so we went on our way rejoicing.

Finally Get There

We reached there at last, glad enough, had a good supper and pretty good beds. Got our breakfast in the morning, bill $4.87/100, quite salty got our breakfast next morning and started for Uncle John's on a little the worst road you ever saw. About 2 o'clock on came Uncle John with the large wagon snapping his whip.

The party spent three days with them, Nov. 1, 2, 3, three pleasant days as we ever saw. The second day we were there we went to a spinning apple dance, as they call it, and as we call it, a cutting apple bee. Had some fun and got home at 11 o'clock, all safe, had plenty of sweet cider and apple pies at Becky's where we went to the spinning apple bee.

Nov. 2nd. All were up [illegible] o'clock, killed a hog and [illegible] and threshed some oats [illegible] forenoon, got dinner then [illegible] to Mr. Manning's, 3 miles from Uncle John's on horseback; Bryan, Johanna, Jane and myself went through the woods, some bad roads such as riding through the mud over logs, got back at dark, all safe.

FIRST PERMANENT SETTLEMENT

The first permanent English settlement in this country was made by Captain John Smith with 105 cavaliers in 3 ships.

They settled in Jamestown, Virginia May 13, 1607—13 years before the coming of the Pilgrims to Plymouth. There had been earlier English settlements in Roanoke North Carolina but they did not last.

There were also earlier French and Spanish settlements in other areas, but Jamestown was the first permanent English settlement.

Blood Means Life

To Hospital Patients

Every minute around the clock 36 patients check into hospitals across the nation. Records show that blood is used at the rate of one pint for every five such admissions. It is used during surgery, to combat disorders of the blood stream and infections, for childbirth hemorrhage — for a wide range of medical treatment. When blood is needed, minutes may mean the difference between life and death. To save life, blood must be waiting for the patient. To make sure your community hospital has blood if a member of your family, or of some other family, requires quick transfusion — give blood regularly. Giving is quick and easy.

Call your Red Cross chapter to learn when and where you can give blood.

WHAT DO LONDON CHOIR BOYS LIKE?

A while back the famous Boys' Choir of St. Paul's in London traveled 15,000 miles in America and sang to 100,000 people. Ten million more saw them on television.

Then they went home, and a famous London newspaper asked what had impressed them most in the whole U. S.

"Twenty-eight different ice cream flavors," said a young spokesman promptly.

No need to tell an American that only in Howard Johnson's are those 28 luscious flavors found. But we might add that our ice cream has merits other than variety. It's richer and creamier . . . gives you more for your money because it's not fluffed up with air. Try it again soon!

Rev. Manis Of Carrollton Back From Alaska Tour

CARROLLTON — The Rev. Glenn Manis, pastor of the Baptist church, returned to Carrollton Friday after spending two weeks at Anchorage, Alaska, where he conducted evangelistic services at the Baptist church there. In addition to his evangelistic work the Rev. Manis took trips around the area and visited Mt. McKinley and other points of interest.

The Rev. Manis was accompanied home by Mrs. Manis and sons who had been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Dorsey, in Speed, Ind., while he was in Alaska. Enroute home the Rev. and Mrs. Manis visited friends at Bichnell, Ind., the Rev. Manis being a former pastor of the Baptist church in that city.

After the sewage system has been finished, a construction company from Wood River will move in with their equipment and men to lay the foundation for the school building. TWENTY QUESTIONS

Have you ever played Twenty Questions? You know the game; the person who's "It" thinks of something Animal, Vegetable or Mineral and the others try to guess it by asking questions that can be answered Yes or No. Several TV shows like What's My Line are based on it. So: —

I'm thinking of something that is Animal, Vegetable AND Mineral.

Q. Is this a product?

Q. Steel?

A. Partly. Steel with beautiful two-tone paint in original condition and other sparkling metals as well.

Q. Did you say this was a steal?

A. I'll have to answer Yes. You'd expect to pay more for it.

Q. Can this be geographically located?

A. I certainly hope you can; most people in town know where to find all the best examples of this product. If you don't know, look at the bottom of this column.

Q. Column! Is this the Greek Parthanon?

A. No.

Q. Oh.

Q. (Slyly) This wouldn't happen to be that terrific air-conditioned Packard I saw at your place the other day for only $1245.00

A. Keerect! And you can't go wrong by coming around to have a look at it. Some of the queerest birds in captivity are on car lots. I capture some of them next time.

Cleopatra Would Revel In Fragrant Sprays

For one touch of glamor, this girl uses a new spray cologne that has a subtle and sophisticated fragrance.

The famous beauties of history could not command any of the beauty aids that any one of us can buy today on a budget. Cleopatra and Marie Antoinette had luxurious palaces but they had to spend hours beautifying themselves with beauty helps that we wouldn't even consider using.

Cleopatra, in her Roman bath, attempted to scrub herself clean with a natural soda. She had nothing as luxurious as soap and bubbling bath crystals. She had perfumes, true, but they were crude forms wrung from flower petals by her slaves.

It would be interesting to see her reaction to a sparkling spray cologne, one that would envelope her instantly in a cloud of subtle and sophisticated fragrance.

Today, such cologne is for every one of us. It's inexpensive, beautifully packaged, delightful to own and to use. And if you like, you can match its scent in bubbling bath crystals, dusting powder, hand and body lotion. Cleopatra never had it so good.

Top Banker's 'Germ Warfare' Aim: Infect America With Savings Fever

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Erle Cocke, President of the American Bankers Association, has been waging a special brand of germ warfare.

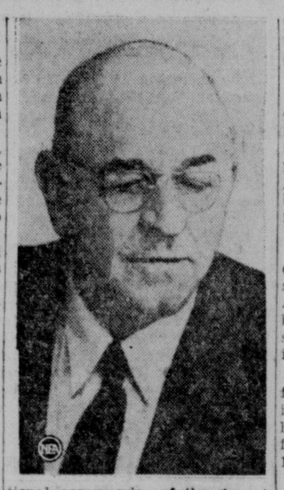

As a prominent Atlanta, Ga., banker and as head of ABA he has been trying to infect the population with tightwad fever. He has been trying to get people to save more money.

Now he has a new command post from which to direct his campaign to encourage savings. President Eisenhower has nominated him to be the new director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, succeeding the late Maple T. Harl.

The 13,500 American banks — 94 per cent of the total number in the U.S.—which enjoy the insurance protection of the FDIC, have a total of 220 billion dollars on deposit.

Cocke is a stocky, genial southern banker — chairman of the board of the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta—who also raises peanuts, trees and cattle. His son, Erle Cocke, Jr., was a national commander of the American Legion.

Cocke, with his heavy southern accent and southern charm has been peddling two types of banking philosophy. In addition to his encouragement of more savings, within banking circles he has tried to alter the traditional approach of bankers to their customers.

Cocke believes that the old concept of the borrower going hat-in-hand to the stony-faced banker is obsolete. "With the heavy competition bankers face today they just can't sit back and wait for business, they have to go after it," he insists.

"The modern bank must be a department store of financial service," he explains. His own Atlanta bank offers 77 different banking services from high school savings programs to giving life insurance to new depositors.

Although his new job is a platform for promoting his banking ideas it also entails plenty of heavy responsibilities. The FDIC fund, for example, now totals 1.75 billion dollars.

Cocke points with pride to the savings record set by individuals last year and thinks it indicates a trend. Savings in 1956 amounted to 14.6 billion dollars, compared with 7.6 billion in 1955 and 12.9 billion in 1952, the previous records since 1945.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

"ROAD" RULES—The need for greater safety on U.S. waterways has led to the introduction in the House of Representatives of three identical bills. Boating experts have warned for years that stiffer regulations would be enacted if skippers failed to obey the simple rules of water "roads." Diagrams above show the correct thing to do in four common situations. The new bills, still pending, strike at "reckless or negligent" boat operation.

STAMPEDE AT BLUE SPRINGS

BY GENE OLSON

XXXV

THE other men at the river held a tight bunch. Finally one rider dropped over the bank and went out of sight. It was like he broke the ties. The others went, too, dipping below the bank. They came up into sight on the south bank and then they loped toward the south ride, splitting into bunches of two and three, like men about to make a lot of tracks. I knew what it meant. Dead, the Clements left nothing. Buffalo Basin was open to any hunter with the price of an outfit.

Blanchard came back up the slope. He walked close and stared at me. He touched my gun near the end of the barrel. Very soft, he said, "A good rifle."

Blanchard turned, his eyes searching the ridge behind us. It was clear. Dorsey moaned.

"He hit?" I asked.

Blanchard shook his head. "Just scared." Blanchard pulled his knife and cut the rawhide thongs tied to Dorsey's wrists and ankles. He lifted Pete off the horse and helped him to stand. Dorsey groaned, looked at Blanchard, then at me, his eyes like dinner plates. He rubbed his wrists, then his ankles, moaning soft all the time.

He lifted Dorsey up behind his saddle, then mounted. I crawled up on the gelding. Moving out to The Narrows, I held my rifle in my hand. Blanchard pushed the bay into a trot but, tired now, he settled back into a stretching walk and Blanchard left him there. I wondered if the road was safe. I looked back and saw a spot of black at the river's edge where Eric fell. I looked up the ridge and saw Dan. I began to believe it then. The road was safe from the Clements.

A half mile farther on, Blanchard held up and pointed. A team and buggy angled in from the southwest, going at a good clip. It pulled onto the road and headed for the ferry, trailing a dust cloud.

"One of us ought to go ahead," Blanchard said. "Either you go to Lillian's or see that Pete gets to town safe."

I said, "I'll head in. Meet you at the house."

I'D never make it in time. I held to the road until the last crest before the river. Then I saw Hawk's boat just starting out from the near side and the team and buggy were on it. I could feel the gelding tire fast under me. He seemed to get some wind back stepping slow through the rocks at the ford and going up the north bank, he felt better under me.

I veered toward the Mexican's house at the end of Prairie St. and then into the street. The horse stumbled then and went to his knees. I hit the ground hard and rolled and came up spitting dust, still holding the reins and my rifle.

Half a block from Depot St., the buggy cut past, heading toward Lillian's. It looked like Cole Jethroe, all right.

I was at the gate when I heard the shot. I hated the sound and cussed my slowness. There was a light in the house. I saw a dark shape move past the window curtains and then fall. I ran up onto the porch and tore open the door. With my rifle stuck out in front of me at the ready, I went into that parlor.

Lillian stood by a buffet, leaning back on it. There was a gun hanging loose in her hand. Her face was death white. In the kitchen doorway, standing spread-legged, was John McNabb, holding a gun that still smoked. Sprawled over the arm of an easy chair was Cole Jethroe, his hat off, his sandy hair loose and mussed. A stain of blood started where his knees touched the floor.

"Pike . . ." Lillian put the gun on the buffet and took a step toward me.

"Blanchard's coming," I said, my voice high with excitement and something else that was coming up fast. "We caught the Clements at the basin, me and Blanchard, and we killed 'em."

SHE put her arms around me. I wasn't ashamed at all, even with John McNabb standing there taking it all in. She kissed me on the cheek. I said, "I'm all right. Blanchard's got Pete."

McNabb holstered his gun. Lillian turned me loose but left her hand on my arm. We all looked at Cole. Lillian said, "I never knew him. Not well. Now he's dead—in my house."

"He was bad," McNabb said. "Rotten. He spoiled Barney." He turned to me. "It's over, then?"

I shook my head. "Not till Blanchard walks in that door."

McNabb went outside to wait.

I heard the horse in the street. I went outside and stood by McNabb. Blanchard and Dorsey walked up the path. Blanchard's eyes touched McNabb, then me. They stayed on me.

"Cole's inside," I said. "Dead. Lillian's all right."

Blanchard came up on the porch. He nodded to me and went inside.

Lillian said, "Cole came in, cursing and snarling like an animal, out of his mind, I think. I took my gun. Then . . . then I heard the shot from the kitchen. Cole fell."

Blanchard turned to McNabb. "Much obliged, McNabb."

McNabb pulled on his mustache. "Reckon I wanted you to think a little better of the town, marshal. I decided I could do just a little bit more, maybe. When a man's needed he can't hide for long."

"Are you the marshal now?"

"If they want me."

Blanchard turned to Lillian. "Lillian . . . it's going to take a lot of saying. There's a lot of ground to cover between us in better times. For now . . . I'm proud to know you. I'll be asking a chance to know you better."

Shower Honors Miss Mary Daly At Meyer Home

Mrs. Wilbur Lee Meyer, of near Arenzville, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower at her home Saturday evening in honor of Miss Mary Daly, of Jacksonville, formerly of Rushville. Miss Daly will be married to S/Sgt. William Shevant, of Jacksonville, August 25, at the Methodist church in Rushville.

The bride's chosen colors, orchid and yellow, were used in the decorations. A yellow silk umbrella with orchid taffeta ruffle and bows centered the gifts. Prizes were awarded for various contests.

Refreshments of angel food cake topped with whipped cream and pineapple, nuts, candy and punch were served to the guests.

Those attending were Mrs. Robert Shevant and Delores, Knoxville, Ill.; Mrs. Vesper Quick, Galesburg; Mrs. Mary Shevant, Maquon, Ill.; Mrs. Irene Caldwell and Miss Elizabeth Hardy, Jacksonville; Mrs. Oliver Meyer, Marilyn, and Miss Kathy Ruppel, Arenzville; Mrs. Charles Daly, Miss Diane Daly, Mrs. Ernest Daly and Judy, of Camden.

Mrs. Vern Croen, Mrs. Jerry Tyson, Miss Peggy Etter, Mrs. Boyd Kettering and Connie, all of Rushville; the hostess, Mrs. Meyers, and the guest of honor.

Those unable to attend but sending gifts were Mrs. Robert Clugston, Mrs. Melvin Vaughn, Mrs. Walter Young, Mrs. Nettie Shelts, Mrs. Barbara Kamm, Mrs. Donna Bollinger, Mrs. Barbara Williams, Mrs. Mary Lou Long, Mrs. Sally Poltawsky, Mrs. Oletha Emerick, Mrs. Florence Briggs, Mrs. Donal Dean, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Pat Shevant, Myrna Loring, Ruby Wells, Doris Cokenour, Lula Bell Clayton and Shirley Vaughn.

KNOW THIS MAN?—This composite drawing, made by the Los Angeles, Calif., police department, depicts the man known as "The Traveler," the nation's most wanted passer of phony checks. He is known to police as P. J. McNeil, but has a list of many aliases. McNeil has been operating for 12 years and his collections, accumulated in some 40 states, now total about $300,000.

BARGAIN HUNTERS
Our house at No. 6 Passavant Court cost us $12,600, about two years ago and we have spent at least $1500, plus considerable labor on improvements. Because we are forced to move to another town we are placing our house up for sale at $12,500. Certainly a real bargain for anyone who likes a home in the outskirts of town in a quiet neighborhood. This property will greatly increase in value with the passing of time.

Willie, 15 months old and already over the 14-pound mark, happily shares his home with a mama cat and a litter of kittens.
